Premier Bennett Invites Freer Flow of Capital Into Productive Fields

New Year Message to the People of Canada Cabinet Head Suggests All Those Who Are Able Join in Giving Strength to Upward Swing in Business and Industry

Hopes Fall Prices Will Soon Improve

Ottawa, Jan. 2. — "It is not unnatural that those possessing wealth should have put it aside while a precipitate decline in prices was in progress," says Premier Bennett in a New Year message to the people of Canada. "That downward movement being now been definitely arrested and an upward trend being in evidence, it behoves all those who have available capital to turn it over as possible to productive use.

At another point in his message, given to the people through the Canadian Press, Premier Bennett said:

"The prices of dairy products, and especially agricultural products, are today the most difficult world problem. These prices throughout the world are at the lowest in history. We have reason for believing prices will shortly improve."

The text of the Premier's message follows:

"Fifteen years ago we were entering the last stage of an armed conflict at exacted an unprecedented toll of life and treasure. The whole world, purchasing power destroyed, markets lost and money accumulated, producing machinery to adjust itself to the consequent breakage in internal and external trade. No nation escaped the war's blight, influence, and peace was made in a world that was not in the wilderness it had created.

"It would be wrong to claim we were consistently with our efforts at world recovery. Had the frank admission of some of the errors that mark the peace and subsequent settlements provides to-day a firmer ground for hope of improvement. We thought the way out was not difficult. At one time the pre-war standards of living seemed to have been regained and even surpassed.

DISILLUSIONMENT

"But too soon we had to face a great disillusionment. The evidences of recovery which we thought were real were based on false premises. A great gap was suddenly apparent between debtor and creditor nations. Vast quantities of gold, the generally accepted standard for determining national and international obligations, shifted from one group of nations to another with disastrous consequences to both.

"Compelled to abandon this generally accepted standard with consequences of far-reaching importance, we have since witnessed two groups of debtor and creditor nations who seemed as two individuals struggling in the water, one of them in apparent health and capable of making for the shore, but held in so firm a grip by the other as to make their common fate inevitable.

through its 1933 problems as well as it did in 1932, because there are many difficulties ahead," said Mayor Leeming this morning in his greetings to city aldermen at the first statutory meeting of the year.

The board met for only five minutes to comply with the requirements of the Municipal Act calling for a meeting on the first Monday in January. Minutes of the previous meeting were adopted and credentials of the newly-elected members filed. Adjournment was then taken until to-morrow night at 8 o'clock when the mayor's inaugural address will be given.

There are three new faces on the 1933 council as compared with that of 1932. The mayor welcomed Alderman J. D. Hunter, Walter Luney and Andrew McGavin to their seats and said he

Sault Ste. Marie Has Big Surplus

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Jan. 2.—It was announced here yesterday that Sault Ste. Marie had a New Year's present in its vaults of some $978,000 in bonds payable in United States funds to meet payments of $513,000 due, or almost twice as many securities as are needed.

It is claimed the Soo's position in this respect is better than that of any other city in Ontario.

ONE CRASH AS YEAR STARTS

Cars Collide at Johnson and Douglas Streets; Driver Is Injured

Lone Arrest Made on New Year's Eve; Three Automobiles Stolen

Crime was practically absent from the city police calendar to-day as the New Year swung into its stride. Only one traffic accident of any account had been reported, and only one arrest, for drunkenness, had been made.

The auto crash took place at the corner of Johnson and Douglas Streets shortly after 4 o'clock New Year's morning, between cars driven by H. J. Norrington, 1320 Franklin Terrace, proceeding south on Douglas Street, and Richard Curtis, 19 Boys Street, proceeding west on Johnson Street. Mr. Curtis was given first aid at police headquarters for minor head injuries.

Three automobiles were stolen over the week-end, but all were recovered soon after they were missed.

Police were called out on two or three occasions Christmas eve to handle hilarious celebrators. One man who is a steady customer at the jail on intoxication charges was booked. A group of men at Douglas and Fort Streets became boisterous about 11 o'clock Saturday night and some decorations and lights were broken, one man being taken to headquarters for safekeeping.

A storekeeper phoned to headquarters stating a man who appeared to be doped was in his shop. The police found the intruder had been drinking.

Three Seniors Shared 125 Years of Service

Henry Gibson, F. Peatt and J. Phillips Leave Street Car Service

Popular Local Employees of B.C. Electric Retire on Pension

After services which aggregated 125 years, three senior employees of the British Columbia Electric Railway Company Limited yesterday retired on superannuation allowances awarded them by the company. Henry Gibson, traffic superintendent, served forty-three years; F. Peatt of the carbarns staff had almost as long a period of service, and Jack Phillips, trackman, had been an employee since 1893.

Mr. Gibson became a member of the staff of the street car system in 1889, when it was owned by the National Electric Tramway and Lighting Company. Although he was shortly afterwards made traffic superintendent, for many years he carried out many other duties. It was not until the inception of the 1910 boom that he was relieved of responsibility for track maintenance. When he commenced his long service the company owned about six cars, designed to be drawn by horses but converted by addition of motors. The electric street cars of Victoria were among the earliest in service in Canada.

DISASTER RECALLED

Mr. Peatt is one of the few survivors of the Point Ellice Bridge disaster of 1896. He was a conductor and was on the car which fell into water when the bridge collapsed. After a long leave of absence, which enabled him to regain health impaired by the terrific experience, Mr. Peatt returned to service in the mechanical department.

Mr. Phillips started his service in 1893 as a conductor and performed that duty until one-man cars were introduced several years ago. He then transferred to the track maintenance branch.

Octopus Scares Spokane People

But Marine Monster Was Brought to Town; It Did Not Swim Up River.

Spokane, Wash., Jan. 2.—If it had been snakes or pink elephants that dozens of Spokane residents had called police headquarters Saturday night to describe, the desk would have remembered it was New Year's Eve. But an octopus—that was something else again.

The calls kept coming. An octopus "as big as a barn" one frightened resident reported, was squirming in Spokane River, hundreds of miles from Salt water. So the sergeant sent out a squad.

The officers found the octopus just as reported. Its tenacles were only eight feet long and it was dead.

It was a mystery until they found Art Hook, who said he was a deep sea diver here on a holiday. He had caught the octopus, he said, in the ocean and brought it here to show his land lubber friends. Then he had thrown it in the river.

EXTRADITION ASKED

Associated Press

Berlin, Jan. 2.—A demand for extradition of three men wanted in connection with the murder of Herbert Hentsch near Dresden last week was sent to the German Ambassador at Rome to-day for presentation to the Italian Government.

The government of Saxony also requested the German consul at Milan to obtain the arrest by Italian police of the accused, who were believed to be in hiding at Bolano.

First Of Year Events Listed

Baby Girl Arrives at 1.43 New Year's Morning; First Fire Alarm and First Accident; First Snow Fall

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Harknett, Ralph Road, Saanich, are credited with being the parents of the first 1933 baby in Victoria district, a girl, who was born at the Jubilee Hospital 1.43 o'clock yesterday morning. Mr. and Mrs. Harknett have two other children.

The first fire alarm of the year was sounded at 10.40 o'clock yesterday morning, being to a chimney blaze at 1 Richmond Road.

The first guest at the city jail was a man arrested for intoxication yesterday night.

The first meeting of the City Council was held at 9.30 o'clock this morning and lasted only five minutes.

The first automobile accident occurred at 4 o'clock Sunday morning at the corner of Douglas and John Streets, no person being slightly injured.

The first snow of the year fell at 5 o'clock yesterday morning. The rain was quite heavy.

FRENCH PREMIER TALKS WITH NEWSPAPER MEN

Premier Joseph Paul-Boncour, centre, has been much sought by reporters since he took over the heavy task dropped by Edouard Herriot. The above picture, showing a few of a large group which surrounded him, was taken recently while he was answering questions on his war debt and other policies.

Forces Work Toward General Business Upturn, Says Beatty

President of C.P.R. Reviews Business and Industrial Events of 1932 and Expresses His Hopes For 1933

Montreal, Jan. 2.—"On the subject of Canada's ultimate future I am as great an optimist as ever I was, and I have a lively hope that even now the turn has come and that forces which are not fully evident are working towards a general business improvement," says E. W. Beatty, K.C., president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, in a message in which he reviews events of 1932 and surveys possibilities for 1933.

DEFINITE PROGRESS

Mr. Beatty's statement reads:

"Writing a similar review to this a year ago, I gave it as my opinion that the after-war period of adjustment through which this country was going was still short of completion. To my mind that statement still stands, but I would now add to it the positive assertion that unhappy as the past twelve months may have been and as lacking in reassuring factors as the immediate future may appear to many, 1932 has been a year of definite and constructive progress toward improvement.

"We see on every side the effect of long drawn-out world trade depression—a process of economic deflation—grinding slowly forward and leaving behind it a wake of human unhappiness and even ruin in directions where it seemed least likely to be possible. With this constantly before our eyes, and having no clear vision of a definite end to our troubles, we are tempted to despair or to look for remedies to those who preach short cuts to economic security as unsound and as surely disastrous as were the extravagant and wasteful methods of conducting national, corporate and individual business which so greatly contributed to the bringing about of present conditions. At the same time we are prone to overlook those evidences of progress which would justify the belief that this transitionary period is taking its well ordered way toward the upward turn to better times that sooner or later will mark its end.

Cantonese Execute Four Smugglers

Associated Press

Hongkong, Jan. 2.—The Japanese consul at Canton was reported officially inquiring into the execution there of four smugglers who were sentenced to death by the Anti-Japanese Boycott Society.

Reports said the Japanese community was most indignant and that meantime arrests, fines and confiscations were continuing, with alleged Japanese goods worth more than 100,000 pounds accumulated.

NIGHT CLUB "CZAR" SLAIN

Larry Fay, Broadway Figure and "Hell's Kitchen" Product, Shot to Death

Associated Press

New York, Jan 2.—Slain by the doorman of his garish mid-town night club, Larry Fay, high-powered Broadway racketeer, was a victim of his own modest gesture at unemployment relief, police said to-day.

Fay, a product of the "Hell's Kitchen" district, was shot through the heart yesterday evening as he attempted to mollify a man whose salary had been cut to make room for another employee.

Police, discrediting reports the shooting may have had the more sinister aspect of a planned underworld execution, set out to find Edward Maloney, a doorman, who disappeared immediately after four shots had cut Fay down.

FARMERS TO GET LAND IN MEXICO

Associated Press

Mexico City, Jan. 2.—The extensive federal army concentration camp at Sarabia, Guanajuato, established several years ago and recently ordered abandoned, will be turned into farms the government announced to-day.

Several thousands acres of land comprise the camp. It will be parcelled out to agraralans. The land was considered valuable because of the irrigation system and useful buildings built by the army.

COLD DAMAGES MEXICAN WHEAT

Associated Press

Mexico City, Jan. 2.—The New Year brought the second cold wave of the winter to Mexico.

Damage to the winter wheat crop was reported to-day from outlying points and new snow covered higher mountain sections around the valley of Mexico. The mercury dropped here yesterday to twenty-five degrees above zero.

FIVE IN CLUB DIE IN FIRE

Ruins of Elks' Building at Vallejo, Cal., Searched; Others May Have Perished

Blaze Discovered Forty Minutes After End of New Year Celebration

Associated Press

Vallejo, Calif., Jan. 2. — Five deaths from a New Year's morning blaze which destroyed the Elks' club here, were listed to-day as firemen searched the ruins to determine if any other person had lost their lives.

Another man was known to have been seriously burned by the fire which raged through the three-story wooden structure yesterday after a night of revelry incident to welcoming the arrival of 1933.

The known victims, who firemen said were trapped in their beds, were:

E. G. Pogarty, forty-five, draughtsman at the Mare Island navy yard.

Edward Geering, forty-six, retired real estate dealer, and barber.

E. G. Swasey, sixty, caretaker of the club. William Mitchell, sixty-five, retired Mare Island navy yard employee.

HAD GREAT START

Arch Travey, exalted ruler of the Vallejo Elks' lodge, said the New Year's party was disbanded at 4.20 a.m., and that the fire was discovered forty minutes later by a man who was driving past the club. Before the fire department could reach the scene the building was wrapped in an envelope of flames.

Travey said the possibility others may have lost their lives in the flames could not be checked until a full list of those who were in the building at the time was secured. It was believed some person may have slipped into vacant rooms and fallen asleep, he said.

HONOR GIVEN SIR G. PERLEY

Canadian Cabinet Member Elevated in Rank in Order of Knighthood

King's New Year Honors Include Six New Barons in Britain

By THOMAS T. CHAMPION, Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Jan. 2.—Six new peerages were created in the New Year's honor list announced yesterday, while Rt. Hon. Sir George Perley, Minister Without Portfolio in the Canadian Government, was made a Knight Grand Cross of the Order of St. Michael and St. George.

Sir George was the only Canadian to be honored, although a companionship of St. Michael and St. George was bestowed on Alan Frederick Lascelles, secretary to the Earl of Bessborough, Governor-General of Canada.

Conferment of the honor on Sir George, which carries with it the same form of address as the title of baronet, was received with pleasure as Sir George made numerous friends during his eight years' residence here during and after the Great War.

(On January 1, 1915, a little over four years before the Parliament of Canada passed a resolution asking the King to grant no more titles in Canada, Mr. Perley a Knight Commander of the Order of St. Michael and St. George. Thus the honor announced yesterday does not represent a new title, but an elevation of rank in the order, to Knight Grand Cross.)

Problems Facing Legislature Many and Varied For Next Session

Difficulties of Municipalities Among Outstanding Subjects

So much routine and other business, some of which it is anticipated will be highly contentious, will come before the last session of the present B.C. Legislature that at least seven or eight weeks will be needed before the order papers are cleared, it is forecast by political observers.

Failure of Premier Tolmie's plans for the formation of a Union Government having been generally recognized, it is predicted that no announcement of an appeal to the country will be made until a month or two after the session closes fulfilling the prediction the government would hang on to office until the last possible moment.

The outstanding problem facing the government on which many other questions hinge, is how it can make up for falling revenues, either by collection through new taxes, cutting down expenses or doing something on both accounts. In spite of frequent and emphatic representations by taxpayers, and especially industries, that taxes have reached the limit of endurance there is little doubt that Hon. J. W. Jones's budget this year will impose new burdens.

TAX FOR UNEMPLOYMENT

The separate tax for unemployment suggested several weeks ago is reported to have been received with greater favor than anticipated. In rough outline the suggestion calls for one per cent. two

NON-AGGRESSION PACT PLAN FAILS

Japan Declines to Sign Proposed Treaty With Soviet Russia

Associated Press

Moscow, Jan. 2.—It was learned unofficially to-day that the Japanese Government had communicated to the Soviet Government a formal refusal to sign a non-aggression pact with Soviet Russia proposed by this government a year ago.

Details were not yet available, but it was reported the main reason for the Japanese refusal was the inability of the two countries to reconcile their opposing viewpoints. Japan was represented as desiring first to settle all differences before signing the pact and Soviet Russia as contending the pact should be signed first as a guarantee that the settlement of such differences would be accomplished by peaceful means.

The reported Japanese refusal followed closely on the recent resumption of diplomatic relations between Soviet Russia and China, although official Soviet newspapers reiterated after that event a Soviet desire for a non-aggression accord with Japan.

Shelling of Shanhaikwan, on Chinese Side of Great Wall, Said to Be Start of Invasion of Jehol Province

Shanghai Newspapers Say Japanese Forced to Attempt Movement Toward Yangtse River to Protect Holdings in Manchuria

Associated Press

Tientsin, China, Jan. 2.—Japanese military forces were reported firing to-day on Shanhaikwan, a Chinese garrison on the south side of the Great Wall of China.

The firing was reported to have begun yesterday evening and continued intermittently through the night. Chinese sources said the reason cited for opening fire was the discovery of two bombs inside a Japanese sentry's quarters early in the evening.

(Shanhaikwan is on the Manchurian border and at the point where Japanese control of the railway from Tientsin and other Chinese cities begins. It is in the province of Jehol, which Japanese military leaders have asserted will be annexed to Manchukuo, the Japanese-sponsored state in Manchuria.)

A Japanese armored train, followed by a troop train, was reported proceeding to-day toward Chinwangtao, the treaty port a few miles in this direction from Shanhaikwan. Railroad communication between Tientsin and Shanhaikwan, a distance of about 150 miles and the route to Peiping from the northeast, was cut off.

COMMANDER DELAYED

The Chinese commander and two foreign railway officials stationed at Shanhaikwan, who were in Peiping and Tientsin over the holidays, were returning to-day, but were unable to proceed beyond Changli, a station forty miles southwest of Shanhaikwan.

It was reported the largest Chinese troop movements thus far into Jehol were proceeding toward Changli for the purpose of opposing a Japanese advance along the railway.

Shanghai newspapers yesterday declared the Japanese soon would be obliged to seek to occupy Jehol in order to maintain their position in Manchuria. They predicted the Japanese would strike boldly into the Peiping and Tientsin areas, reaching possibly as far south as the Yangtse River.

Japanese reports verified outbreaks already in the Shanhaikwan area and described a serious war threat there.

Thirty Overcome By Choking Fumes

Associated Press

Philadelphia, Jan. 2.—Thirty firemen and policemen were overcome yesterday when a cloud of choking gas suddenly issued from the ruins of a tallow and hide plant in the Bridgesburg section of this city which burned Saturday night. Nine buildings, covering four acres, were destroyed. The damage was estimated by firemen at $350,000.

NOTED PAINTER DIES IN PARIS

Associated Press

Paris, Jan. 2—Pierre Carrier-Belleuse, a noted painter, died here yesterday at the age of eighty-two.

M. Carrier-Belleuse, who was born in Paris in 1851, was an officer of the Legion of Honor and a cavalier in the Order of Leopold of Belgium.

He was the son of a sculptor. He worked mostly with pastels. Among his subjects were dancers, nude figures and portraits, of which several were purchased by the state and placed in various museums in France and abroad.

CLASHES IN BERLIN

Berlin, Jan. 2 (Associated Press)—Three persons were killed and scores of others were wounded in political clashes here on New Year's Eve and yesterday. Police reported twenty clashes in which they estimated 300 were hurt.

Flying Boat Arcturus Forced Down and Beached on Florida's East Coast

Associated Press

Washington, Jan. 2.—Coast guard headquarters to-day received a report that the coast guard flying boat Arcturus, forced down in the Atlantic, had been beached at 4 a.m., five miles south of Sebastian Inlet on the Florida east coast. The report said the craft was wrecked, but there were no casualties.

Three officers were aboard the Arcturus when it was forced down Sunday ten miles off Fort Pierce.

The report to headquarters here from the Fort Lauderdale station gave no details as to how the craft had been beached.

A large cutter, the Unalga, putting out from Fort Everglades, was said to be closest to the disabled Arcturus, but there was no indication when she would reach the scene.

Commander Ton von Caulson was in charge of the Arcturus. It was forced down while on a rescue flight.

Premier Bennett Invites Freer Flow of Capital Into Productive Fields

"This year again we face the same unsolved problems, but with an absolutely new world vision and an enlightened hope—a vision that comes to those determined against failure—and a hope that is based on profitable experiences. There is reason to believe the international profess of trial and error we have been experimenting with is passed. We have learned to approach the task with the realization that depression is a common enemy to all of us, and that only by a united approach can success be made certain.

DISARMAMENT

"No richer blessing could come at the moment to a harassed world than the assurance of permanent universal peace," continued the Premier. "This is dependent, however, on settlement of disarmament problems. When immediate disarmament problems are settled, confidence will be restored, credit extended, purchasing power reestablished and international channels of trade will be reopened.

"Canada will pay her own debts according to the letter of her contracts. That is our attitude to our own obligations. As to inter-governmental war debts, the Dominion of Canada has incurred none. As to reparations, we have already renounced our claim, amounting to more than $150,000,000. Any adjustment of reparations and war debt which may be made means loss, and in no sense gain to the Canadian treasury, but we are none the less vitally interested in such an adjustment being made between debtor and creditor nations as will help to restore normal international credit conditions in the world.

"In the wider aspects of the World Economic Conference, we will contribute our best to the solution of these problems that concern us in common with the nations of the world. Meanwhile, we enjoy a favored position.

OTTAWA CONFERENCE

"One year ago I called attention to the proposed Imperial Economic Conference, which has since been held in Ottawa. Those of us who were privileged to represent this country on that great occasion were conscious of a spirit of empire co-operation and goodwill. We succeeded at that conference in developing a plan of reciprocal preferential tariffs which makes available to each of its many parts the combined resources of the empire as a whole. We were conscious that certain problems could be solved by a world conference. We were aware from the beginning of our own limitations, but the opportunities available to us of the empire, representing one-quarter of the human family, were not lost. For Canadian products of the farm, forest, sea and mine, we have provided wider markets, and we have secured the interest of the consumer by making available to him as a purchaser the products of the whole empire.

FARM PRICES

"The prices of primary products, and especially agricultural products, are to-day the most difficult world problem. These prices throughout the world are the lowest in history. We have reason for believing prices will shortly improve.

EXCHANGE STABILIZATION

"The benefits of wider empire markets will not be fully realized until exchanges are stabilized and credit conditions permit of a greater measure of purchasing power throughout the world. It is fortunate our plans for greater empire trade were made in advance of world recovery. What we have accomplished at the Ottawa conference in 1932 will enable Canada to take the fullest advantage of improved world conditions. We have maintained a sound money position in Canada. We have paid all our maturing obligations abroad. This country, it cannot be too often emphasized, has all to lose and nothing to gain by renunciation of debts, however burdensome their payment may be.

"A short-sighted policy would mean something for the present, but if we are conscious of the trust reposed in us—10,000,000 people—of developing the greatest and richest resources available to any country in the world, we must realize that money will seek investment in Canada because of confidence in our sound monetary system. Credit is the means by which our resources can be developed and the fullest advantage taken of empire and world markets.

"Public men to-day face a difficult task. Of that we do not complain. With what measure of devotion to duty we serve you, will be for the future to determine.

AID FOR JOBLESS

"It has fallen to us, in the federal, provincial and municipal fields, to provide assistance for those who, through world conditions, are unemployed. We must frankly consider the consequences of continued non-productive spending in unemployment relief. We shall have to reconsider our methods in financing unemployment. The financing we have had to do for unemployment measuring during the depression will be a charge on the productive resources of to-morrow.

"Our ears are deafened and confused by the advocates of monetary nostrums. But there are also a few old-time fashioned prejudices. One of the latter is the notion that money or wealth can be separated from enterprise and cloistered in safe keeping away from the call of industrial needs. Your wealth, savings, insurance and investment will melt like snow before your eyes.

DUTY OF CAPITAL

"It is not unnatural that those possessing wealth should have put it aside while a precipitate decline in prices was in progress. That downward movement having now been definitely arrested and an upward trend being in evidence, it behooves all those who have available capital to turn it as far as possible to productive use.

"Recovery from the universal depression will not be sudden but it is believed by competent observers that Canada is in the best position of any country in the world to take advantage of a return to enduring prosperity," continued Premier Bennett. "If as individuals we are quick to sense the opportunities that are presently appearing, and resolute to apply our energies to the task of pursuing them, the dark days through which we have been passing will be remembered not for the suffering endured because of those conditions, but as a spur to more effective efforts.

"While the present depression is unique by reason of its magnitude, essentially it is not a new thing. It is well to remember that those who the past have been sustained in their have gone through such experiences in trials by their faith in a wise and beneficient Providence; and they emerged from their difficulties with a clearer sense of obligation, a more resolute application to the tasks before them, more devoted as citizens in the service of their country and their fellow men.

"We must, we will, be worthy of the faith and achievements of such ancestors."

STEVENS GIVES TRADE REVIEW

Minister Looks to International Conference in London to Aid Canada

In Review of Year's Trade He Voices Hopes For Improvement

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Jan. 2.—"Canada is vitally interested in the success of the international economic conference shortly to be held in London. It is a matter of primary importance, not only to Canada, but to the whole world, this conference shall succeed in restoring world prices and the value of international trade to something like what they were before the commencement of the great depression."

In his annual economic review, issued yesterday, Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce, made the above reference to the coming conference. Until the conference, he added, "we have to deal with things as they are."

The minister, in his statement covering fourteen pages, blamed the maldistribution of gold reserves for many of the ills from which the world is suffering. At the end of September, he stated, France and the United States had in their possession approximately 60 per cent of the total gold reserves of the world.

The result of this was other countries were endeavoring to hold all the gold they had, exchange restrictions resulted. Inevitably, international trade suffered.

FARM PRICES

Under separate headings the minister reviewed briefly conditions in the various industries of Canada.

With respect to the farming industry, he saw some hope in the duty of two shillings per quarter now levied on foreign wheat entering the United Kingdom market. This "should assist our people in holding on till better times," he stated.

Tariffs imposed by the United States on imported lumber, and lower prices of newsprint and "disorganization in the paper industry generally," were referred to by the minister as being responsible for depressed conditions in forestry. In spite of unfavorable conditions, however, he stated the output of newsprint in Canada during the first eleven months of 1932 was 1,780,000 tons. This was larger than in any complete year pior to 1926.

THORNY PATH FOR MEMBERS

per cent, or whatever amount may be set to be collected from wage and salary cheques as the Jones one per cent tax is collected. The amount received would be earmarked for unemployment relief and the suggestion has been advanced that legislation be passed to provide for the tax to be raised and lowered at any time, according to the necessity of funds for unemployment relief at any particular time.

Equal to this in importance and one which will occupy many hours of the time of the members in committee and in the House is the problem of the municipalities of British Columbia, including those of defaulting municipalities and those of municipalities who seek to have the government step in and take over their affairs. North Vancouver and Burnaby have fulfilled the prediction made at the last session when grants to municipalities were cut and a portion of social service costs were unloaded on the cities. Warnings were given on that occasion that if this were done some municipalities would throw up their charters. A dozen or more other municipalities are about ready to do this according to reports.

If this course should be followed the question arises as to whether the Dominion Government would not look to the British Columbia Government to shoulder the responsibility as it has done in the case of Alberta and Calgary. In that case the Dominion Government has virtually put the case up to the Alberta Government to whom it has announced its willingness to make a loan so the city of Calgary will not default on its bonds and at the same time announced it will not make the loan direct to the city of Calgary.

It appears doubtful at this time whether the burning subject of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway will bring the ray of sunshine for Premier Tolmie and his supporters they had hoped it would bring. If the sale of the government line could have been consummated without the ratification of the Legislature, the Premier and his supporters might face what portends to be a gloomy session for them in much brighter spirits. The sale of the P.G.E. had been looked for by Conservatives to bring cash to the shrunken treasury and to prove a brilliant talking point overshadowing all others in the appeal to the country which must come within a few months after the session closes.

The path to a sale of the line, however, appears to be beset by thorns. Frequently it has been reported the sale has been on the verge of completion.

Apparently few of the many offers that Premier Tolmie has been announcing at intervals he has received for the line have been acceptable. In the case of those which might have been acceptable it appears when the point of putting up the money has been reached funds have been lacking.

The whole problem has been a source of great concern to the Premier and his colleagues as what slender hopes some of the most optimistic Conservatives entertain of returning to power appear to vanish in thin air.

FEW CANDIDATES AT COURTENAY

Courtenay, Jan. 2.—With three aldermen definitel yout of the running an election in Courtenay is assured.

Owing to the retirement of Aldermen Robson, Thomson and Brown their seats on the council will have to be filled. Up to the present time Mayor Charles Simms has no opposition, although J. W. McKenzie Jr. has been asked to run for either mayor, alderman or school trustee. R. H. Harrison is being pressed by his friends to run for alderman.

Three school trustees, Mrs. B. Harvey, Ben Hughes and E. Felix Thomas, are retiring, and the latter is expected to run again. Mrs. Hugh Stewart and M. S. Stephens have been approached to run for office but were forced to decline.

QUAKE ROCKS SOUTH AFRICA

Great Property Damage Done By Disturbance on Saturday

Canadian Press

Johannesburg, South Africa, Jan. 2.—Ruined and half-collapsed homes throughout South Africa to-day told the story of a year-end earthquake that caused terror in every state of the Union Saturday and property damage too widespread to be estimated in value. No casualties were reported.

Johannesburg residents rushed panic-stricken from their homes when the first of a series of four tremors was felt, but far more serious damage was caused at Natal and Newcastle. Walls were cracked in the distuspance here but solid brick houses were shaken so violently in Natal that many cracked wide open and collapsed.

At Newcastle a home crumbled in ruins but its occupants had rushed to the street. The main tremor experienced here lasted a minute and forty seconds.

The tremors extended as far north as Zululand, north of Natal, but damage there and in the Moffy Fontein section of Orange Free State, epicentre of the quake, was slight.

NIGHT CLUB "CZAR" SLAIN

The one-time milk "czar" and taxicab operator whose night club enterprises once brought him as much as $10,000 a week, died with three dimes in his pocket.

He was said by police to have cut Maloney's $100 a week salary to $60 in order to take on another doorman at $40. Shortly after 8.30 o'clock yesterday evening, while cleaners were straightening up the disarray of the club's new year celebration, Maloney appeared and began an argument with his employer.

Five shots followed, all but one finding their mark in the man who had ridden around town for years in a specially constructed bullet-proof automobile.

Fay, who was in his forties, was credited with having started the first modern night club in Manhattan, with Texas Guinan as the hostess.

HONOR GIVEN SIR G. PERLEY

NEW BARONS

The King's New Year distribution of rewards yesterday for public services also created two Privy Councillors, six baronets, twenty-eight knights and many companions.

The new barons are:

Sir Joseph Duveen, internationally known art collector, who has been decorated for his activities in that field by four governments and a baronet since 1926.

Sir Thomas Horder, physician to the Prince of Wales since 1923 and holder of important posts in several London hospitals.

Field Marshal Sir George Milne, chief of the Imperial General Staff.

Sir Charles A. Nall-Cain, prominent business man.

Sir Rennell Rodd, former Ambassador to Italy and former American nonnational member of the United States Venezuela peace advancement commission.

Sir Walter Runciman, prominent shipping operator and father of Rt. Hon. Walter Runciman, president of the Board of Trade and member of the British cabinet.

NEW BARONETS

Among those named baronets are Sir Owen Seaman, editor of the humorous magazine, Punch, and Sir Ernest Musgrave Harvey, deputy governor of the bank of England.

Hon. Joseph G. Latham, Minister of Foreign Affairs in the new Australian government, was made a Privy Councillor.

Rev. John Scott Lidgett, president of the Methodist Church, was named a Companion of Honor.

MOLLISONS NOT HONORED

There was surprise in some quarters because the names of Captain James A. Mollison and his wife, the former Amy Johnson, both famous fliers, were not included in the list.

Gives Chimes For First Church Organ

A New Year's gift to First United Church of a magnificent set of chimes as an addition to the organ was announced by Rev. Dr. W. G. Wilson, pastor, at the services.

The donor was Edward C. Montagu, a member of the congregation, and the splendid gift will be installed in time to be played at the Easter Day services.

FIVE-YEAR PLAN FOR DOMINION

Changes Suggested By Professor of College in Winnipeg

Winnipeg, Jan. 2—A five-year plan for Canada, as formulated by Prof. A. R. M. Lower of the department of history of Wesley College, affiliated with the University of Manitoba, is being discussed here.

The plan includes several rather novel suggestions, along with one or two radical ideas.

Briefly, Prof. Lower's plan is:

1. House-clean Canada's educational system. Give appropriate type of education. Vocational training to the many; professional training to those of good abilities but without philosophical interests; humanistic education of a broad philosophical nature to those fitted for and interested in it.

2. Patronage of the fine arts. Let rich men take budding young men under their care, buy their pictures, subsidize publication of their poetry. A national radio system.

3. Away with government paternalism in business, but if the people must have paternalism make it positive, rather than negative. Fewer subsidies on Canadian manufactured materials and more on ideas.

4. Some return of independence to Parliament and some weakening of the executive. A return to a three-party system might be necessary to accomplish this reform.

5. Consolidation of power in the federal government. Of recent years there has been to much centralizing of authority in provincial hands.

6. Abolition of appeals to the Privy Council in London, leaving safeguards of minorities and religions intact. Amend the British North America Act to give more power to the federal government.

7. Centralized control of basic industries, such as pulp and paper, textiles, hydro, etc. Prevent competition to the point where a higher tariff is necessary to enable existing industries to live, leaving to individual initiative a wide field of activity.

JUSTICE GRANT, ONTARIO, DIES

Canadian Press

Toronto, Jan. 2.—Mr. Justice D. Inglis Grant, of the Court of Appeal of the Supreme Court of Ontario, died at his residence here yesterday. He was sixty years of age.

Mr. Justice Grant, appointed to the Ontario High Court Bench in 1925, was born at Ingersoll and was a son of Rev. Dr. R. N. Grant, who formery wrote for the Toronto Globe under the pen-name "Knoxonian."

Horoscope

TUESDAY, JANUARY 3, 1933

Adverse planetary aspects appear to rule to-day, according to astrology. It is a time for deliberate planning and careful activities of every sort.

While there may be a strong impulse toward initiative, it is well not to trust one's judgment under this government of the stars.

There may be a sense of weariness and depression while this configuration prevails. This may be the influence of malefic planets as well as the after effects of holiday celebration.

Irritability may be prevalent due to the sinister power of Mars, and arguments should be avoided. Quarrels are easily precipitated under this rule.

This is not an auspicious day to seek employment. The wise will delay effort toward a new job of any description.

Although this first of the work days of the new year may seem a bit discouraging, it is really the preface of real prosperity for many persons, the seers announce.

Success in 1933 is to be gained through making haste toward fortune slowly, it is foretold. Small beginnings should be accepted with the knowledge that progress through wise policies are assured.

King George of England should benefit through the kindly aspect of Jupiter. Many fair promises are indicated for the British Empire, which is to gain after divers difficulties.

Mars is read as presaging for King George anxiety regarding one of his sons. A strong ray of Venus is discerned in the horoscope of the Prince of Wales.

President Hoover comes under a rule of the stars bringing him many serious problems which will prove his strength as a statesman, astrologers prophesy.

Extraordinary weather conditions will be experienced in many parts of the world, and especially in the United States, it is prognosticated.

Lucretia Mott, reformer and early equal-suffragist, was born on this day 1793. Another who celebrated it as a birthday was Douglas Jerrold, 1803, English writer.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year of changes. Employees should be careful. Journeys are indicated.

Children born on this day probably will be vigorous, energetic and independent. Many subjects of this sign attain fame through unusual intellectual gifts.

TO TOUR WORLD

Los Angeles, Jan. 2—Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton, evangelist, announced Saturday she would leave Los Angeles in February on a world tour. She will be accompanied only by her mother-in-law, Mrs. David Hutton Sr.

"I am going to travel incognito as much as possible," the evangelist said. "I must escape from all the turmoil of lawsuits and publicity and from crowds and excitement. Ocean travel and quiet will, I am sure, restore my health. I do not know how long I shall be gone."

Much Perjury In Courts of England

Dover, Eng., Jan. 2.—"The amount of perjury committed in the courts of this country is appalling," said Judge Clements in the Dover County Court. "People come to the courts and take the oath, but you never expect them to speak the truth at all.

"They say, 'I swear by Almighty God,' and it is an offence against the law of the country and an insult to Almighty God, in whom they do not believe. They ought not to be able to take an oath unless they mean to keep it, and if they take it and fail to keep it, they should be punished. But if this were so the judges would never get through their work. They would work all day and every day and have no vacations."

PREMIER BENNETT SOUNDS ENCOURAGING NOTE

Premier Bennett's New Year's message is a call to Canadians with capital to turn their money into productive channels. He thinks—and rightly so—the public should realize that it is unsound economically to continue to pay out money for unemployment relief that is patently non-productive. He concedes that the exigencies of the situation demand governmental help, but he also points out that this form of assistance must come from the pockets of the taxpayers as a whole, some of whom can not afford the drain, while others might do a great deal of good with money now lying idle.

The Prime Minister's message is far from a pessimistic one. The country, he says, is young; its wealth of natural resources is great and diversified, and this augurs hopefully for the future. In regard to financial policy, Mr. Bennett assures us that Canada will pay her bills as they fall due. "We have paid all our maturing obligations abroad," he explains, "and it can not be too often emphasized that this country has all to lose and nothing to gain by renunciation of debts, however burdensome their payment may be."

Mr. Bennett by no means strays from the truth when he says that Canada is in the best position of any country in the world to take advantage of a return to enduring prosperity. His view is that this Dominion will face 1933 "with a vision that comes to those determined against failure—with a faith based on profitable experience." This is the right note to sound and it should be heeded by every Canadian.

THE SWING BACK TO THE FARM

This continent's farm population is growing. In spite of an agricultural depression that is both extensive and severe, the number of people who live on farms has increased many thousands.

This, of course, is due chiefly to the depression—the industrial depression, not the agricultural one. Young men and women who left their farm homes in the boom years and went looking for jobs in the cities have been glad enough to get back home lately; men who had been city workers for years have taken over idle farm land in preference to staying in town and living on charity.

For the man on the farm has one big advantage over the man in the city, when times are bad—he is right at the source of the food supply. As long as he has a few potatoes, a few vegetables, a few chickens, a few pigs and a cow or two he can keep on eating, even if his pocketbook is flat.

One wonders, though, how long this swing back to the farm will last. For the farmer has to pay taxes; he has to keep his land and equipment in shape; he has to buy stock, feed, fertilizer, seed and the like; he has, all too often, to carry a mortgage; and to do all of these things he has to have a cash income. Living at the source of the food supply does not help you much if the sheriff comes along some day and puts you off because you can not pay what you owe.

Several years ago an eastern business man found a way to make farm life pay. He bought a small farm and raised produce for his own consumption instead of for the market. He bought small mills for grinding grain, pressure cookers for canning vegetables, and so on; and presently he found that he was producing practically everything that his family ate, from green vegetables to wheat flour and corn meal; the income from his city job carried his farm's expenses, and he was about twice as well to do as he ever had been before.

Will we, some day, come to some such system as that for large numbers of the population? Theoretically, the plan is perfectly feasible. In a time like this it might be worth thinking about.

WHAT MARVELS WE MORTALS BE!

It is a fascinating picture of the human body which Dr. George W. Crile of an eastern clinic has drawn up.

An almost infinite number of tiny suns, intensely hot and glowing like distant star-points, forming minute solar systems "created in its own image by the sun's radiance"—this is the set-up in our bodies as Dr. Crile sees it.

"We may say that the protoplasm is a 'milky way,'" he remarks; and again he refers to the vital centres in the system as "sun in infinite miniature."

All of this, whatever else it may mean to research workers, seems to prove nothing so much as that when you extend science and poetry far enough they meet, like parallel lines pulled out to infinity.

This work that Dr. Crile has been doing is a matter of laboratories, charts and mathematical calculations—seemingly as dry and prosaic a business as could be imagined.

But his conclusion, however it may rank as science, is the very stuff of which poetry is made. The high sense of wonder, of great marvels, of profound and breath-taking mystery which the artist finds when he looks into the riddle of human existence is expressed here just as an artist might express it.

Beneath the palm of your hand or the skin on your shoulder there lies a glowing, incandescent duplication of the wheeling sun and the golden stars. You can not see it, you can not detect it by any combination of microscope and dissecting scalpel—but it is there, an amazingly tiny microcosm, existing alike in saint and criminal, in old man and newborn baby.

That is Dr. Crile's picture. It comes out of a medical laboratory, which is modern sceptical materialism incarnate; but it is a picture that only a great artist could have conceived or expressed.

MR. BEATTY HOPES FOR LOWER TARIFFS

One of the most significant statements in the New Year's message from Mr. E. W. Beatty, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, is the expression of his hope that there will be a "very general scaling down of tariff barriers that would go far toward encouraging the movement of commodities."

As the head of a great transportation company which depends entirely for its revenue upon its services to the public and industry, Mr. Beatty naturally wants the movement of commodities to grow in volume. Exports and imports are all the same to a railway company. The more of both there are, the more employment there will be, and the better it will be for the country as a whole.

We hope Mr. Beatty will be able to convince the government that one of the best New Year's gifts it could give to the Canadian people would be a reduction of tariffs to encourage "the movement of commodities." A gesture of this kind would be helpful both to Canada and abroad.

GERMANY PLEASED WITH HER NEW "RAIL ZEPPELIN"

Airmen, motor-car builders, and operators of bus lines in Germany, says The New York Times, are casting apprehensive eyes at the Reichsbahn's new auto-train, or "rail Zeppelin," which, carrying officials and invited guests, pulled out of Berlin at eight o'clock last Monday morning on a trial run to Hamburg under normal traffic conditions. It covered the 178 miles in two hours and twenty-one minutes, cutting down the fastest train time by thirty-eight minutes. The average speed was 75.8 miles an hour and the maximum attained was 96.3. On the return trip eight minutes more were allowed so as not to interfere with the heavy Berlin suburban traffic in the evening hours. The officials expressed complete satisfaction with both runs.

The auto-train, which is 138 feet long, consists of two sections closely coupled and vestibuled over a special truck. It seats 102 passengers and has a baggage and refreshment room. It drives in either direction, and both ends—or heads—are streamlined. Care has been taken to reduce air resistance as much as possible, even the headlights being countersunk. The motive power is furnished by two 140-horsepower Maybach-Diesel motors with direct-drive generators.

The "Flying Hamburger," as the auto-train is called, was designed by Dr. Franz Kruckenberg, who directs the traffic experimental station of the State Railways at Hanover. He hopes that his car will solve for the railways the problem of airplane and bus competition. His invention, he contends, is not only safer but also cheaper to build and operate than planes, and his goal is to replace long, heavy trains with these omnibus-Zeppelins and have them traveling along all the main railway lines at intervals of half an hour or even less.

ADVERSITY SOMETIMES USEFUL

The uses of adversity, according to an ancient proverb, are sweet. That proverb usually is more popular among people who have not had much contact with adversity than among people who have; nevertheless, it seems to work out right once in a while.

Consider the man in a western province, who, because of poverty, was forced to live for six weeks on stale bread and skimmed milk.

During that time he gained greatly in weight and recovered from a long-standing stomach ailment.

All of us, no doubt, would be happier if we could be sure that all of the victims of the depression would find scanty fare equally beneficial. Unfortunately, this man's case is a very marked exception from the rule.

Loose Ends

The truth cannot be longer disguised—we are in it—and yet 1933 seems much like 1932—for it all depends on the way you take it—and nearly everybody takes it in the wrong way.

By H. B. W.

A GREAT SUCCESS

WELL, WE have successfully achieved a New Year, which, so far as I can discover, is the only human achievement of the last twelve months. Yes, we are in a New Year, so the calendar tells us, but I notice very little difference, except that a lot of my friends are feeling rather weak and making pious resolutions for the future. There is very little difference and that is the fact to get clear about 1933 from the start—there will be very little difference. This 1933 is going to be very much like every other year for most of us, whatever happens in the higher realms of politics, finance and economics, where most of us never penetrate.

* * *

WHATEVER HAPPENS, even if Prosperity returns with a rush, we shall hardly realize that anything is happening—any more than we admitted that we were in the middle of a boom in 1928 and 1929, when governments were elected everywhere to end the depression. For most of us 1933 will show changes only in non-essentials. Essentials will go on much as usual, for a new year is much less important than you imagine.

* * *

WHAT IS important is the way you take it. Mr. Rudy Vallee's advice, under the circumstances—"don't take it serious, it's too mysterious." And remember this—you will be a year older at the end of it. Even if it is a year of depression, even if Prosperity doesn't return with a rush, it is still a year of your life.

LIFE

THE TROUBLE with most of us is that ever since the depression started we haven't realized that. We have staggered along with our spirits more depressed than our economics, always looking for that famous corner, always expecting things to be better to-morrow and living in misery of mind to-day. It is a great mistake and almost universal. Most of my friends, indeed, have existed dully all their lives in the expectation that, having made money, they will be able to live happily after a while. Most of their lives have been wasted in this expectation and now, having made money, they have lost the knack of living altogether. The only thing a sensible man can do in these times is to live as best he may while the depression is still on, for while it will end, the world is going to be in a constant state of flux and inconvenient change as long as most of us are alive, probably as long as any human animal is still alive to change it. If you insist on putting off the pleasure of living until things settle down to normal, you will never enjoy that pleasure at all. You must accept the abnormal as normal if you are going to make 1933 fit to live in.

RESOLUTIONS

THAT SHOULD be your only New Year resolution— not to be depressed any more. Apart from that I reprobate New Year's resolutions of all kinds. They are the resort of weak fellows who have no intention of keeping them anyway. Strong men don't have to make such resolutions—they reform without them or go on living gallantly in sin without worrying about it. Doubtless many pious resolutions are being made to-day. Doubtless Premier Bennett is resolving never to state again that he can cure unemployment, and never to go to England alone, leaving his cabinet to improvise horrid business deals with bloody Russia behind his back. Doubtless Mr. Jones is resolving to balance his next budget, but not to boast too much or too soon of its balance. Doubtless Mr. Beak (at present indisposed) is resolving to leave the rum out of his loganberry, or vice versa.

* * *

BUT MY advice to them and to you is to do nothing of the sort. Make no resolutions of reform. Be bold and brave. Be a free man and a hardy pioneer. Have the courage of your wickedness. Go on smoking three or four too many cigarettes a day. Go on secretly despising your wife's relations. Go on wishing privately that you were as young as your pretty stenographer. These things are about all that is left to you in this disordered world. Anyway, I never heard of a New Year resolution which did any real good. I knew a fellow once who gave up chewing tobacco until the middle of January and another chap who went without beating his wife until February 5, and a year ago I never incited anyone to violence in this column for a full fortnight. But in the end these resolutions did no good. We all went back to our evil courses and now look at us.

EXTORTION

I REGRET to say, however, that the little girl next door has become infected already with this disease of New Year piety. "I resolutioned," she told me just now, "to be extra good this year. I resolutioned not to say anything naughty any more, 'cause when I say anything naughty it hurts God's feelings, my mummy says. Once I said 'dam' and it hurted him awfully badly. My daddy say it hurt him awfully badly, too. But when he says it, then it doesn't hurt him awfully badly at all. That's queer, eh? And baby he resolutioned not to pull Tim's tail. And my big dolly, she resolutioned to be a good girl and not do it any more at all. We're going to be so good that maybe you could give me some money, 'cause I spended all mine on Christmas presents for you."

"Well, I said, "I'll give you some money when my ship comes in."

"I never knew you had a ship," she said.

"Well," I said, "I haven't really, it's just an expression."

"What's a expression?" she said, "is it like a ship? Is it as big as our canoe up the lake? Where do you keep your expression?"

"It's just a word," I said.

"But you said it was a ship," she said.

"I know," I said, "it's just a foolish sort of thing to say, that's all."

"Well, you shouldn't say foolish things," she said. "You should resolution not to say them. But what I want to know is when your ship is coming in with the money?"

"I have no ship," I began again, but realizing it was hopeless, I ruined myself and bribed her to go away, because I wanted to have time left to thank a number of thoughtful people who sent me New Year greetings.

GREETINGS

IT IS REMARKABLE, indeed, how well disposed people can become at this season, even towards me. One Esquimalt gentleman wrote to ask me to celebrate the birth of the new year with him in a tour of the beer parlors and other resorts of his district which apparently are well known to him. Unfortunately the invitation came too late. Another chap who lives at Anyox, who reads this kind of stuff but seems to be a good father and a kind husband, sent me two delightful ash trays, made of native copper at a smelter up there. A statesman gave me a box of excellent apples from his own constituency and another a bottle of sunshine from the hillsides of Okanagan. I think this is a delightful and quaint custom which I hope will spread. At the moment, for the information of others who may have the same idea, I am in need of two tons of coal, a new automobile, some good barnyard stuff for my raspberries and a few new ideas, especially the latter. I have no doubt the generous readers of this column will supply the other things, but I have never yet received any new ideas from them.

MAJOR H. WATTS IS LIFE MEMBER

A life membership in the Army and Navy Veterans Association, accompanied by a purse of gold, were presented to Major H. Watts on Saturday evening at the clubrooms of the association, during the progress of an excellent concert.

The presentation was made by Thomas Jones, president, who referred to the many years' service as club pianist which had been given my Major Watts. He also expressed the regret of the members that failing eyesight compelled Major Watts to resign his post. The great interest taken by the retiring pianist in all forms of work for veterans, was also touched upon by the speaker.

Artists taking part in the evening's programme included: P. H. Hughes, E. E. Hardisty, E. Falk, T. Obee, Stanley James, A. Jackman, George Guy, J. Mossop, A. Lea, P. Blakely, H. A. Lilley, R. Lea, S. Howard, H. Warren, A. Glendinning, A. Livesay, H. Hall, C. Jasper, W. Daskill, S. Bramley, G. Wilson, Major H. Watts, H. Taylor, R. Lavery and A. Jones. Harold Callow acted as master of ceremonies.

Teachers Protesting New Basis Made For Education Grants

B.C. Federation Investigating Scheme Announced By Hinchliffe and Will Shortly Issue Statement

Canadian Press

Vancouver, Jan. 2.—Strong protest against the bases on which Hon. Joshua Hinchliffe, Minister of Education, proposes to determine educational grants for 1933 is being voiced by the B.C. Teachers' Federation.

The federation is making a further investigation, and will announce its findings shortly.

The teachers, meeting in the Hotel Georgie here Saturday evening, went on record as deploring the fact that "such a scheme should have been brought forward without fully considering the possibilities of a more equitable adjustment through the income tax."

It was felt Mr. Hinchcliffe's action would place a further burden on the property owners, for the government had definitely "passed the buck" to the municipalities, which were said to be least able to bear additional costs in view of the fact that they had already been saddled with social service expenditures.

"The claim of the minister that he has based his scheme of educational grant on 'ability to pay' is entirely specious and misleading," one resolution declared.

By reducing educational grants by nearly half a million dollars, following former drastic cuts, the government was asking education to bear "an undue and unjust proportion of undoubtedly necessary financial adjustment," it was stated.

The meeting was held in camera, with representatives from many parts of the province in attendance.

Mrs. Leslie Grant Was First Woman To Dive

Claim of St. John School Teacher Is Made Just Eighteen Years Too Late; Daughter of Late Murdock McDonald, One of Well-known Divers Here, Made Descent Off Metchosin on May 23, 1914

The claim of Miss Jean A. MacCallum, school teacher of St. John, N.B., to being the first woman in Canada to don a diving suit and go below is just eighteen years late.

On May 23, 1914, Mrs. Leslie Grant, who lives at 1231 McKenzie Street, was dropped into forty feet of water at Metchosin and spent half an hour wandering around on the seabed, engrossed in the fascinating scenery there.

Mrs. Grant being dressed for her dive. She has the diving suit and collar on.

Mrs. Grant is the daughter of the late Murdock McDonald, who is remembered by many old-timers as one of the early divers of the Pacific Coast. He first took up diving when they were laying the water mains across the Vancouver arrows and later he settled here and worked with the well-known Jack McHardy, who resides at 3430 Quadra Street.

Mr. McDonald was employed as a diver on many large undertakings not only in waters about Victoria but in many parts of the coast. He worked on the steamer San Pedro, when she stranded on Brotchie Ledge in the mouth of Victoria Harbor and on laying the underwater foundations for the Rithet piers.

Mrs. Grant smiling through front glass of her helmet just before descending.

GAINS FOREMAN'S SUPPORT

Leslie McDonald had watched her father dive and she asked many questions as to what it was like below. She finally expressed a desire to be allowed to make a dive. The father would not hear of it. She was determined, however, and finally won the support of her father's foreman, Thomas Withers, who now lives at Cobble Hill.

When Mr. Withers broached the matter of arranging a dive for Leslie, Mr. McDonald made it known in no uncertain terms that he was still against the proposal.

Leslie persisted and finally her father weakened and, looking over to Mr. Withers, said:

"Alright, Withers, you're responsible. I'll have nothing to do with it."

Mr. Withers showed no outward evidence of the responsibility that had been placed upon him and the young girl was jubilant. She immediately wanted to know when the dive would come off.

It was arranged that the party should leave Esquimalt Harbor on Sunday morning, May 23, 1914, and proceed to Metchosin where there was a good bottom and clear water.

"It was funny," said Mrs. Grant in recalling the experience this morning. "You know, dad said he would have nothing to do with it; but you should have seen him. He watched every move and saw that everything was right below before I was sent down."

WORE EVERYTHING

"Yes, I wore everything," Mrs. Grant replied to a question. "I put on woolen clothes and sweaters and then they pulled on my suit. The lead boots which weighed twenty pounds apiece, were laced on my feet and then they put on the collar and led me over to the ladder. Mr. Withers told me to get over on the ladder and I must say it was quite a job navigating in those big boots. But I finally got over the side and onto the ladder. Then Mr. Withers began giving me instructions. He told me what signals to give with the handline in case I became alarmed. He told me how to adjust the air valve at the top of the helmet and then he asked me how I was feeling.

"People asked me afterwards wasn't I afraid or didn't I feel weak at the knees, but I never at any time had any of those feelings. It more of a lark for me and I wouldn't mind going down again now.

"They put the heavy chest weights on me and then Mr. Withers held the helmet over my head. I don't know how he felt because after all dad was holding him responsible in case anything went wrong. But he dropped the helmet over my head and gave it a turn and then I saw the men start turning the air pump. I felt the air pump. I felt the air come in through the top of my helmet and I waited a few seconds. They put quite a pressure in my suit and I was blown up like a balloon. I smiled at them all on the boat and the old boatman told Mr. Withers that he wouldn't take $1,000 and do what I was doing. I only wish someone had been around and offered $1,000 to me for the trip.

"I went down the ladder a step at a time until I reached the last rung and then I did as I was told, pushed off and let go. I went down pretty fast and hit the bottom in no time, as it was only forty feet. When I hit the bottom I seemed to bounce but I soon got control of myself and stood still.

"What I saw was the most magnificent view of my life. It was simply wonderful and I've never been able to describe it. The glass in the front of the helmet magnifies a great deal and the water enlarges things, too. I saw great fish flash by. But you know the minnows down there look like sharks. And the entrancing green water. I've never seen anything like it and the high grass waving so gracefully.

WALKED ABOUT

"After viewing things for a few minutes I started to walk around. I had no new sensations. It was not hard to walk and I had no headache or earache. I saw an old watch on the bottom and picked it up. I later found out that one of the men had dropped it from the boat to see if I would find it. I also collected shells. After being down twenty-nine minutes I decided to go up and gave the signal. I fixed my air valve and in no time my head was bobbing above the water. I got over to the ladder and climbed out.

"When my helmet was removed I found I had a little headache and I was hungry. I did not eat anything that morning as my father always made it a practice never to eat before he made a dive.

"I made a second dive in the afternoon as Mr. Withers wanted me to. He thought that I had had such a good trip before that it would do me good to make another and show me there wasn't very much to diving. I went down and came up right away."

Mrs. Grant's exploit was widely published and she was heralded as the first woman on the Pacific Coast to make a dive and no one objected to her claim of being the first woman in Canada to accomplish the feat.

EFFICIENCY OF MILITIA GROWS

Brigadier Sutherland Brown Pays Tribute to Non-permanent Units

Increased efficiency marked the activities of the non-permanent militia during the year 1932, despite substantial reduction in the amounts available to the various units, it is announced by Brigadier J. Sutherland Brown, CMG, DSO, officer commanding this military district.

Warm tribute to the loyalty, energy and keenness of officers, non-commissioned officers and men is voiced by Brigadier Brown in a New Year's message, in which he points out that the establishments of the various units were fully maintained and that all trained more men than the number allotted by the training vote.

Brigadier Brown added the comment that it was not generally known that officers and men of all units pool their pay, in whole or in part, for the regimental funds, to be used for sporting and social activities. The customary gifts by honorary officers and friends of the units had been reduced as a result of the difficult times being experienced.

"The estimates for the Department of National Defence were heavily reduced for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1933," the Brigadier states. "This does not mean, however, that the federal government has shown any apathy toward the militia forces, but rather has been forced, on account of financial conditions, to economize.

"The reduction of the training vote would have had a disastrous effect upon the non-permanent forces of this province if it had not been for the loyalty, the energy and the keenness of officers and men. They were fully backed up by the permanent establishment at Work Point. The above effort has resulted in increased efficiency during the year."

PERMANENT FORCE

With reference to the permanent force, Brigadier Brown says: "Never at any stage since a garrison was established at Esquimalt have we had more capable and more experienced officers and warrant officers, and never before has there been a better lot of men, better educated, alert and keen good sportsmen, loyal and determined."

In closing his review, on behalf of the militia of the province, the Brigadier wishes all the citizens of British Columbia a Happy New Year and the prospects of better times in the future.

WOOD MONEY BIG SUCCESS

Experiment in Tenino, Wash., Lifts Town from Depression Slump

Insolvency of Bank Overcome; "Exchange Rate" Rises Greatly

The man who coined the expression "don't take any wooden money" was no reckoning with the resourcefulness of the people of Tenino, Washington. Last year real wooden money was issued there and its "exchange rate" has risen to such a point that a twenty-five-cent wooden piece is worth about $50. A special United Press dispatch tells how wooden money was put successfully:

"It was a happy New Year for Tenino—the town that lifted itself from the depression with an issue of wooden money that was bought by souvenir hunters over the world. Wooden twenty-five-cent pieces went to collectors in New Zealand, Australia, India, Turkey, European countries and hundreds of cities of the United States. The period of redemption was cut to January 1, 1933. Wooden money flowed out of Tenino and national currency arrived. In fact, wooden money is so scarce in Tenino now that collectors will pay $2.50 for twenty-five-cent pieces.

GET REAL MONEY

About $7,000 in real money rolled into Tenino and a few days ago the town bought the building and equipment of the insolvent Citizens' Bank. If the State Legislature revives state banking laws next month Tenino hopes to own and operate its own bank.

The Chamber of Commerce is prosperous, community ears have been aided and the town treasury has cash on hand—all due to public demand for wooden money.

The idea came quite by chance. Merchants found themselves without funds when the Citizens' Bank became insolvent. The script system was adopted December 20, 1931. Depositors were invited to assign twenty-five per cent of their deposits to the Chamber of Commerce, which issued a like amount of script in $10, $5, $1 and 25-cent denominations.

ASSETS THAWED

The script circulated and was redeemed by the chamber when the dividend was paid. Part of the bank's assets were thawed.

A printer had an idea of getting out real wooden money. Horewood, a new product for printing purposes, was used. Newspapers printed the story—and Tenino prospered.

LARGE ISSUE

Demand for wooden money became so general from souvenir hunters that quantity production was necessary. Wooden money was withdrawn from local circulation. The three trustees of the Chamber of Commerce—Don M. Major, newspaper publisher; Dr. F. W. Wichman and A. H. Dyer—had to sign so many "chips" that they had their signatures printed on later issues.

Gary Has Reached Great Heights

By ROBERT GRANDON

Hollywood—Now that Johnny Weissmuller has been admitted to stellar honors . . . the publicity hounds have had to boost the height of Gary Cooper a bit to keep his figure up to publication standards . . .

Gary used to be 6 feet 3 inches . . . and Johnny is that height, you know . . . so now, when Gary's name is mentioned, the fact is tagged to it that he stands 6 feet 4 inches . . . which leads one to wonder why D. W. Griffith didn't choose him instead of Walter Huston for that Lincoln role. . . .

Gary was cast opposite Helen Hayes in that "Farewell to Arms" . . . and Helen is the shortest woman of the screen. She stands an even five feet. . . . So, of course, Gary had to be the tallest man to add up the total . . . which explains his mature growth. . . .

The tallest woman on the screen, by the way, is Aline MacMahon. Her height is five feet eight inches. . . . Kay Francis comes close to her in height and Kay also lays claim to the smallest feet among the ladies of the screenies. Her shoe is a number 4. . . .

Gloria Swanson is in Kay's class, too, for Gloria used to wear the slippers of her little girl. . . . Among the men, Charlie Chaplin boasts the smallest understandings. They're the size of a woman's . . .

One of the best built men of the colony is George Bancroft . . . Formerly a champion boxer of the navy, he measures up with Dempsey and Tunney.

Board of Experts On Unemployment

Pearson Scheme to Spread Jobs Over Year Due For Consideration

Interchange of Seasonal Workers Is Among Recommendations

Formation of a permanent commission on employment in British Columbia, whose activities would be linked up with similar commissions that might be formed in other provinces of Canada will be advocated at the next session of the British Columbia Legislature opening in February, it is anticipated.

A detailed proposal along this line was advanced by George S. Pearson, Liberal member for Nanaimo, in his first speech in the present Legislature, which was also his maiden speech as a member. Mr. Pearson also offered his ideas on the subject at subsequent sessions.

Issuing a warning four years ago that unemployment would rapidly become an urgent problem, Mr. Pearson pressed for the formation of a commission to endeavor to avert just such a situation as is now being faced.

NON-POLITICAL

The proposed commission would be non-political and composed of labor, industrial and business men supported by others whose advice might be valuable. Its objective would be to strive to adjust industry to avert long periods of unemployment for some workers and to interchange workers employed in seasonal occupations.

Information for workers to guard against drifting from one place where work is slack to another where the chances of securing employment were even less might be provided by the commission. It would direct its energies to devising some system to replace the present haphazard manner of finding jobs.

Advocates of the scheme believe it might be found possible for some industries which only operate part time each year or which have slack periods to so arrange their business that the greatest number of men would be employed. It might be possible to arrange undertakings to be started only when there is slack in government and private industry so that the need for jobs was most pressing rather than when employment was available at seasonal occupations.

The problem of the seasonal worker, which was one of the most pressing in the whole problem of unemployment, would be one of the most important phases the proposed commission would deal with, but it would be only one of many. There would be many other plans and ideas which would be considered by a board on which labor, industry and government were represented.

Friends Sympathize Over Sailor's Loss

Mrs. S. D. Girling, mother of Rowland Havelock Girling, who was drowned at Shoal Bay on December 22 while trying to save his boat during the recent big storm, has received many messages of sympathy from former school friends of the young sailor and from his seafaring mates.

Mr. Girling was a son of the late Capt. Girling, Saskatoon, and of Mrs. D. S. Girling, King George Terrace, Beach Drive. He was born in Saskatoon in 1909, came to B.C. in 1915, was educated in Victoria public schools, with the exception of two years when he attended Cranleigh House School. After finishing his public school education he joined the Sea Cadets in preparation for his sea training.

From this organization he joined the Ss. Canadian Winner of the Canadian National Steamships Limited as cadet and after four years deep sea time on this ship he successfully wrote his papers for second officer, obtaining his first officer's certificate two years later.

Up to the time of his death his intention were to carry on with his seafaring life and to obtain his deep sea master's certificate.

The ships he sailed on included the Canadian Winner, Canadian Skirmisher, Canadian Coaster and Canadian Spinner, City of Vancouver and Canadian, completing seven years at sea.

There were 250 guests who enjoyed the hospitality of the Yacht Club members and danced to the strains of an excellent orchestra.

The specious lounge and the glass-enclosed verandas made a perfect setting for the dance, being suitably decorated. One part of the veranda was fixed up as a sitting-out place and supper was served during the midnight hour in the upstairs dining-room. Bright paper hats, whistles and noise-makers of all kinds, and serpentine made a colorful scene.

OFFICERS HOSTS TO GAY CROWD

Canadian Scottish Mess Scene of Traditional Revelry Saturday

With traditional noise and revelry, the dawn of a New Year was hailed by a large throng of dancers at the Armories on Saturday evening, when the officers of the Canadian Scottish Regiment entertained at a New Year's Eve dance, one of the many celebrations arranged in the city to greet 1933.

STRIKING DECORATIONS

An Arctic scene was faithfully reproduced in the decoration of the refreshment room, the walls papered with white crepe paper on which had been sprinkled artificial snow, and model penguins gave an effective touch to the scene. White streamers across the ceiling converged to one point over the long window at the end of the room, and six revolving lights, a rising sun and flood lighting enhancing the general effect.

The committee in charge of the dance, headed by Capt. Stuart Robertson, included Lieuts. T. Woolison, Charles Fraser, W. Pollard and W. Georgeson, while Lieut. W. Parker was responsible for the striking decorations

Merry Crowd Welcomes New Year At Empress

Relegating the old year to the limbo of forgotten things and ushering in 1933 with joyous anticipation, a merry throng of 300 guests celebrated New Year's Eve at the Empress Hotel on Saturday evening at a gathering which eclipsed even those of previous years in point of gaiety and enjoyment. The departure from the usual custom of adjourning to the dining and grill room for supper proved a most popular innovation, the function being arranged instead as a supper dance in the ballroom, with the midnight repast served at the small holly-bedecked favor-laden tables. The ballroom was very beautifully decorated, scarlet, silver and green tinsel streamers shading the lights, while behind the orchestra dais an ultra-modern design of black and glittering silver and red tinsel was centred with a huge clock of silver tinsel, with numerals of red.

DANCER BRINGS 1933

As the hour of midnight struck, concealed doors beneath the clock opened and 1933 appeared, not as the traditional small boy, but in the person of Miss Wynne Shaw, a striking figure in black and silver, who danced the Old Year out and the New Year in, to the accompanying cheers of the spectators. Then came the singing of "Auld Lang Syne" as the illuminated greeting, "A Happy New Year, 1933," flashed out, and the dancer departed by the way she had come.

Unusually beautiful paper hats were furnished for the guests, together with squeakers, horns, rattles and every variety of instrument to add to the concatenation of sound, and at intervals throughout the evening huge showers of balloons were released from the ceiling, to add to the carnival aspect.

Among the many guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Ray Castle, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Straith, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Dalton (Vancouver), Mr. J. Conway, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Galloway, Miss Mona Miller, Dr. and Mrs. J. H. ## MISS PROCTOR WED IN EAST

Popular Vancouver Girl Bride of Flight-Lieut. B. C. Carr-Harris, R.C.A.F.

Of much interest to local friends of the bride was the wedding which took place at St. Alban's Church, Ottawa, on Saturday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock, when Mary Christine, second daughter of Dr. and Mrs. A. P. Procter of Vancouver became the bride of Flight-Lieut. Brian G. Carr-Harris, R.C.A.F., son of the late Professor Carr-Harris and of Mrs. Carr-Harris of Kingston, Ont. The ceremony was performed by Canon Whaley and the bride was given in marriage by Lieut.-Commander E. Rollo Mainguy, R.C.N.

Shimmering white satin cut on Empire lines fashioned the exquisite gown worn by the bride. Made with a square-cut neckline marked at each corner with a pearl button, the bodice of the dress had huge sleeves of alternating bands of satin and net puffed from shoulder to elbow and from there to the wrist, fastened tightly with tiny satin buttons. The long, circular skirt formed a train at the back and was marked at intervals with small clusters of orange blossoms, while her veil of fine old Limerick lace was caught to her head with orange blossoms and cascaded to the floor.

Mrs. Rollo Mainguy, as matron of honor, wore a gown of bottle-green velvet with a hat to match, and Miss Anne Procter, younger sister of the bride, who was also an attendant, wore a frock of eggshell taffeta with a girdle of emerald-green velvet and slippers and hat to match. Master Daniel Mainguy, three-year-old son of Lieut.-Commander and Mrs. Mainguy, and godson of the bride, was the small page in a pale green crepe de Chine smock and white shoes. Mrs. A. P. Procter, the bride's mother, was charming in an ensemble of brown suede velvet with gold eyelet embroidery worn with a cream blouse and dark brown hat and shoes.

The groom, who wore the full-dress uniform of the Royal Canadian Air Force, was supported by his brother, Mr. Guy Carr-Harris, and the ushers were Mr. Stephen Cantlie, Mr. Arthur F. Procter, who accompanied his cousin east, and Gentleman Cadet William McBrian.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Lieut.-Commander and Mrs. Mainguy. For going away, Mrs. Carr-Harris chose a two-piece frock of American beauty crepe, worn with a very close-fitting French hat shading from American beauty to a rich wine tone. Her accessories were of dark brown suede and her fur coat was of dark brown broadtail with squirrel collar and cuffs.

Daughter Of Late Alberta Speaker Is Married Here

Of much interest to former Albertans, as well as to Victoria friends of the young couple, was the marriage quietly solemnized on Saturday evening at the home of the bride's mother, when Rev. Bruce Gray united in marriage Marjorie Louise, second daughter of the late Hon. C. W. Fisher, former Speaker in the Alberta Legislature, and Mrs. Fisher, Beach Drive, to Charles William Hardy, son of R. Hardy, Browning Street, Saanich, and of the late Mrs. Hardy.

The ceremony was performed beneath an archway of white flowers and greenery, similar flowers being used throughout the reception rooms. The bride, who was given in marriage by her mother, wore a charming gown of periwinkle blue lace with a matching bandeau in her hair, and a short jacket of brown velvet. About twenty guests arrived later and stayed to welcome in the New Year.

The daintily-appointed supper table was centred with the handsome wedding cake, which was cut by the bride in time-honored fashion.

Weddings

TOMBS-BELLAMY

A wedding of considerable interest to residents of the district took place on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock at St. Alban's Anglican Church, Port Alberni, when Elizabeth Lucy, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Bellamy of Port Alberni, became the bride of Mr. Frank Rowland Tombs, third son of Mrs. L. Tombs and the late T. E. Tombs of Duncan.

The chancel was tastefully decorated with late autumn blossoms where the ceremony was performed by Rev. Glen Stevenson. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a graceful woven suit in tones of Dulce blue, with hat in harmonizing shades, and carried a sheaf bouquet of rose carnations and lilies of the valley. Attending as bridesmaids were Miss E. F. Bellamy and Miss E. A. Bellamy, sisters of the bride, who wore gowns of maroon crepe trimmed with deep collars of egg-shell pastel shade. Their hats were in the same deep tones and they carried shower bouquets. Mr. S. J Tombs supported his brother as best man. During the signing of the register Miss S. May Tombs of Duncan, sister of the bridegroom, contributed the solo, "Because." Following the service a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Mrs. Bellamy receiving the guests in a smart gown of rustic green charmeuse with revers of taupe soliel. Later in the day, Mr. and Mrs. Tombs left for Victoria where the honeymoon will be spent, the bride wearing for traveling, a smart tailored coat of black soutache cloth, collared and cuffed with platinum fox fur. On their return, they will reside in Port Alberni.

THORPE-WHITELEY

At St. John's Church, Colwood, on Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock, the marriage was quietly solemnized by Rev. H. S. Payne of Nellie, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. Whiteley, 1043 Topaz Avenue, and Mrs. Thomas Thorpe, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. James T. Thorpe, 3320 Tennyson Avenue. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore her traveling suit of brown tweed, and a small felt hat with a tiny veil, and carried a sheaf of yellow chrysanthemums. There were no attendants. A small reception to intimate friends of the bride and groom was held later at the home of the bride's parents, where pale blue and pink featured the decorations, the handsome two-tiered cake having the place of honor on the tea table. After a wedding trip to up-island points, Mr. and Mrs. Thorpe will make their home at Colwood. Among the gifts was a silver casserole from the members of the A.O.F. Dramatic Club, and a standard lamp from the staff and employees of the Victoria Paper Box Company, where the bride had been a stenographer for a number of years.

COOPER-PUGH

Cherry Creek Ranch near Port Alberni was the scene of a pretty wedding December 24, when Dorothy Mary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Pugh, was united in marriage to Mr. Leland LeRoy Cooper, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cooper, of Alberni. Rev. T. H. McAllister of the Presbyterian Church read the service, and Mr. Hugh A. Green, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, acted as best man. Given in marriage by her father, the bride made a striking picture in a princess gown of moonlight blue crepe de Chine, her shower bouquet of pink and yellow chrysanthemums blending with the tones of her gown. Mrs. H. A. Green, sister of the bridegroom, acted as matron of honor, wearing an effective gown of crepe de Chine in mauve shades, and also carrying a bouquet of pink and yellow chrysanthemums.

Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Cooper motored to Nanaimo en route to Vancouver and Seattle to spend the honeymoon. They will take up residence at Nanaimo Road, Alberni.

Scottish Piper Leads Grand March Into Supper at Midnight

The Colwood Golf and Country Club assumed an unwontedly festive garb on Saturday evening to welcome the 400 members and friends who assembled to speed the parting year and welcome the New Year with time-honored revelry. Huge searchlights at the gate and illuminations along the private roadway twinkled the first note of greeting to the guests, the lavish decorations of the interior further heightening the carnival atmosphere.

Masses of holly and greenery, flowers and Christmas bells, were used in the dining-room and sunroom, where dancing took place, while the spacious lounge with its softly shaded lights and the huge fireplace massed with sprays of silver leaves, formed an ideal rendezvous between dances. Supper was served in the "nineteenth hole" which was also festively decorated, and favors, whistles and other noise-making instruments, were provided in generous numbers, contributing to the hilarity with which "hail and farewell" was expressed to 1933 and 1932.

Over two hundred guests danced the Old Year out and the New Year in at the "no-host" party sponsored by Mrs. D. McAdie, Mrs. F. W. Mayhew, Mrs. E. Tomlin, Mrs. Fred McGregor, Mrs. P. B. Scurrah and Mrs. S. J. Willis on Saturday evening. The merry affair was held in the banquet hall of the Crystal Garden, which was gaily decorated with an illuminated Christmas tree and other seasonable features.

Findler's six-piece orchestra played the music for dancing and supper was served at midnight, the tables being centred with a Christmas centrepiece and scarlet candles in silver candelabra, while gaily-decorated crackers, paper hats and other favors were piled high, adding a striking note of color.

Your Baby and Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

MINOR CHANGES IN DIET AND ROUTINE HELP ECZEMATOUS BABY

It would not be difficult for a mother to isolate the cause of eczema if she were in the habit of recording new foods as they are added to the diet. Along with this record of food should go any changes in routine, or in methods of preparing food which are sufficiently different to be significant should eczema occur.

DEVELOPED RASH

In the following case the mother has made two changes simultaneously, and she has blamed one but not the other for the sudden appearance of the characteristic rash.

"My boy is eighteen months old and I have been following your feeding leaflets with remarkable success," begins her letter. "He now has three regular meals a day and a midmeal at 4 p.m., and weighs twenty-nine pounds.

"But here is my present problem. Two months ago I started cod liver oil, the super D type. I gave him the designated amount for about three days and then I noticed his breath was bad. Then he developed a red rash which spread across his nose and cheeks. I thought it might be the oil so I stopped it and while the breath is better, the rash, after two months, is still present. Some days it is better and some days worse.

GETS UNBOILED MILK

"I have been giving him two cups of cereal daily and I stopped that and am only giving him one cup daily and a potato with butter and cream at his night meal instead of cereal. He gets an egg every other day in the form of custard and a slice of bacon on alternate days. About two months ago I quit boiling his milk and now he gets plain, sweet milk to drink, except whatever extra he gets in his food."

If the cod liver oil had been the factor that caused the rash, the disturbance would have cleared up shortly after you removed it from the diet. This is equally true of the cereal. None of the changes you have made has influenced the rash. But you omitted to notice another important change. You stopped boiling the milk. Ever since then the rash has been present. My leaflet, "What the Mother Should Know About Eczema," will be of help to you and any other mother with this problem. You may have a copy by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to me with your request.

BOIL MILK AGAIN

A sensitivity to proteins is rather common among children. While it is not possible to omit proteins from the diet, there are forms in which they cause less disturbance. One of these forms is boiled milk, or in commercial form, evaporated or dried milk. This cooking renders the protein less offending to the child and in your case it is probably the factor at fault. Boil the milk again and see what happens.

An egg every other day may also be too much for the child who has this sensitivity toward protein. The egg may be served hard-boiled, though it might be better to omit it altogether and substitute other usable proteins such as meat, cheese, or nut butters.

Fat intolerance being one prominent cause of eczema, it is also possible that cream and butter on the baby's potato are not advisable and that skimmed, boiled milk would be better. But include the oil again, in the same form. There is no reason at all why it should have set up any disturbance such as eczema.

FINE CHRISTMAS CONCERT GIVEN

With a special Christmas programme and presentation of the White Gift Pageant, the Erskine Presbyterian Church Sunday School commemorated its annual Christmas entertainment and presentation of prizes in the church, Harriet and Lurline Roads, Parkdale last week.

The following programme formed the first part of the concert: Song, "On the Hilltops," Pearl, Sadie and Patsy Button; song, "Children of Jerusalem," Jessie Robertson; solo, "Hark, the Herald Angels," Jack Robertson; readings, Arthur Button and Bobby Carter; recitations, Bobby Carter and Freddie Button; solos, "Gift He Gave to Emmanuel" and "Sweet Story of Old," Jean Atcheson, accompanied by Margaret McKinnon; duet on violin and piano, Florence Atcheson and M. McKinnon. Rev. A. O. Thomson, D.D. presided.

On Wednesday evening at the Gorge Church, the Canadian Girls in Training, under the leadership of Mrs. W. Sanders, presented the White Gift Pageant. In character costumes, representing angels, wise men and shepherds the girls gave a splendid presentation of the events of the Nativity and sang the different hymns exceptionally well.

Later presents were given to the Sunday school children from two gaily decorated Christmas trees.

Saanich Girl Is Bride At Pretty House Wedding

The home of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Bird, 2823 Dysart Road, the scene of a pretty wedding on Friday evening, December 30, when Corinna May, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archibald R. L. Keevil, became the bride of George William Purves-Smith, of Albert Head, son of the late Rev. Dr. G. Purves-Smith of North China and Mrs. Alice Purves-Smith of Albert Head.

The wedding arch was decorated in large yellow and white chrysanthemums on a background of green, and the whole color scheme was based on the same.

The bride was attended by her sister, Winifred and Joan Bird, her flower girl. The bridegroom was supported by Ralph S. Gwyther of Vancouver. To the music of the wedding march played by her aunt, Mrs. Claudia Bird, the bride dressed in white satin and bridal veil carrying a bouquet of white chrysanthemums and pink carnations proceeded to the wedding arch, where Rev. M. S. Richardson performed the ceremony, during which he called upon H. Moore Bell of Vancouver B.C., the aged grandfather of the bride, for his patriarchal blessing on the bride and groom.

During the signing of the register a solo was rendered by Mrs. Claudia Bird, and later in the evening her daughter, Marjorie Bird, sang "The Story Ever Old and True."

The best man proposed the toast to the bride, the groom replying, and was followed by a speech from A. C. R. Portway, a personal friend of the groom's family in both North China and Canada. The hostesses were the mothers of the bride and groom, and Mrs. Claudia Bird, assisted by Miss Daisy Bell.

Many beautiful gifts were on display. Over sixty guests were present.

CHAPTER XXIV

Tea was over. Tom and Statlander had come out promptly. Rosie had been sent to summon Marvin, still upstairs after Linda's unexpected glimpse of him, and Shaughnessey had appeared in bland humor before she had time to dispatch anyone to notify him. The little ceremony, simple as it was, had steadied Linda's nerves and enabled her, while listening to the talk of others, to formulate her own thoughts. Now, on the plea of a rest before dinner, she was in her own room and Tom soon followed her upstairs for the first interview.

Linda permitted herself to relax in his arms for a moment, then resolutely assumed her briskest, most business-like manner.

"I've found out a good deal, Tom, but it won't take long to tell. First, have you heard from Dr. Boyle?"

"No. I telephoned the station after you came up and Tim said they'd had no word. He evidently doesn't think Boyle intends to hurry himself. In fact, I gather he believes just the opposite. I told him we'd have dinner at seven and that we would remain in the house until he did let us know. My guess is Boyle will wander in sometime this morning. I can't say I anticipate the experience."

"The later he comes the better I'll be pleased. During dinner I'm going to ask the men to stay all night. Now shall I talk or will you?"

"Shoot! I didn't get anything from Statlander. Too strictly business. You had a better chance for general talk than I."

"I talked to Marvin and Mr. DeVos. I overheard Mr. Shaughnessey talking to Rosie and I think that's the most important of all."

"Take 'em in turn."

"First, Marvin. Impressions rather than actual discoveries. He didn't want to—he most awfully didn't want to talk to me! I made him. He absolutely refused to talk about the trouble I tried several leads, but couldn't start him. Then all of a sudden he opened up on a line I'd never thought of taking." She told of Marvin's pointed inquiry about the extent of intimacy between the old man and herself and the emotion which the apparently trivial facts elicited.

"Now my guess as to what started it is that Cousin Amos called him down—you remember hearing that cencorious, reproving tone—for paying too much attention to me."

* * *

Linda flushed a little under her husband's keen regard. "Tom, honestly—there was nothing for anyone to notice—you or Cousin Amos or anybody else. That's just Marvin's way. He's awkward with strangers and talks only with the person he knows. If he'd been acquainted with you and never met me he'd have paid attention only to you and been actually rude to me. He's—an individualist. He goes off by himself for months and months. He just can't adapt himself, and the more people there are, the worse he is."

"That's entirely possible," agreed Tom. "Don't get rattled, Binks. I'm not ag'in you. Go on with the story."

"You are a dear! Where was I? Oh, he said first that he wished he'd known Cousin Amos wasn't so close to me as he pretended he was—or words to that effect. Then he began hinting that perhaps Cousin Amos and I talked together—you know, father-and-daughter stuff—and so I egged him on all I could. He did try so hard not to talk about it! Finally he burst out with a point blank question. Asked me if we had talked—if I'd gone to his room or if he had come here. Later he said that Cousin Amos's calling down was all about me. At least he said that covered it. But earlier, I got the idea that there was something he didn't want us to talk about together."

Hm! And you didn't get any lead on what it was?"

"Not the slightest. He even asked—or sort of hinted to find out—if I'd seen Cousin Amos again last night after we came in."

"And that means, of course, after the two of them talked."

That's so. It would be the only time I could. I drove Marvin over so he knew I didn't go upstairs again before we left for the club."

"So that—counting out the person who was there this morning—Marvin was the last to talk with the old man alive."

"Yes."

"And Cousin Amos died without saying something Marvin didn't want him to say."

* * *

Linda pushed back the matted hair around her face. "Then you do think there was something besides—besides me, Tom?"

"I can only go on what you say, Binks."

"It isn't much, I know. I didn't find out any of the things you told me to ask about."

"One of us can get those later. After all, I can see now—hearing about Cousin Amos's unpleasant insinuations—that Pratt would be abnormally self-conscious about being alone with you. Well, that's all we have on him."

"Not exactly all. One thing, Tom, happened later. I was talking to Mr. DeVos—I'll tell you about that in a moment. But I happened to look up—up at the house, I mean. And Marvin was there—"

"There! Where? On the balcony?"

"No. In the nursery. I saw him—oh, just a second! It was so quick that I've wondered since if it really happened. But I know, down deep, that I wasn't mistaken. The door to the balcony was shut. His face just appeared there—and vanished."

"The door wasn't open? You didn't see him go out on the balcony?"

"No nor try to open the door. I thought of that. If—if he was the one—he might have tried Cousin Amos's door to go back into the room and found it locked—and thought of the connecting balcony and the other room."

"But he knew you were on the lawn in plain sight."

"I was also out of the way. And I might have been looking out toward the water. He could have slipped across easily then."

"At any rate he'd think he could look out the window and find out without you seeing him."

"Then I had that curious feeling that someone was looking at me and looked up. He moved so quickly he might easily have believed I didn't see him at all."

They sat silent a moment. Linda was trembling slightly. Tom spoke first.

"Well, after all, people sometimes explore other people's houses. He might have wandered into that empty room and then been afraid you'd caught him prying. But just the same—well, leave him now. DeVos was next?"

"No. Then I overheard Rosie talking to Mr. Shaughnessey."

* * *

Almost word for word she repeated the conversation, her troubled voice unconsciously, reflecting the musical Irish intonation. Tom smiled. Linda was naturally a clever mimic and doubly so now, with her anxiety to reproduce the situation accurately. But as he listened, all thought of any other suspect dropped from his mind.

"Linda—we must see that shirt! Or have you already? You say Rosie has it in her room?"

Linda's face fell.

"It didn't occur to me to go up and look. I had time to. But you know I let the girls alone all I can and I rarely invade their rooms."

"Can't you now?"

"She's there. After they serve tea and clear it up they go upstairs to rest a bit and change their clothes for dinner."

He pondered that.

"During dinner could you make some excuse?"

"I could—and I will if you say so. But I don't think it would be wise. This hot clear weather it would be dry by now. Her windows get the afternoon sun. She probably took it in when she went upstairs."

"Well—we can decide that later. But that's awfully important, Binks."

"If the stains were—blood—"

"What else would he be so anxious to get out?"

"I don't know. Liquor, perhaps."

"He doesn't consider that any disgrace! He'd just stuff the shirt in his bag. It would be done for after the dance last night, anyhow."

"You think it was that one?"

"What other?"

"The men dressed for dinner Thursday night too."

"But—blood!"

She nodded. Suddenly he comprehended.

"By jove, Binks—that's so! Bunty—more likely, I'd say! That is, granting he did it—did both of them. He wouldn't get blood on his shirt and the cuff too, throwing the old man over the parapet. But we don't know how the poor old dog was killed, except that she was smashed so horribly. Blood—blood and white hairs, I'd say. Important to get rid of it only after Cousin Amos—oh, gosh, Binks, I wish you'd seen that shirt!"

(To Be Continued)

Mrs. G. A. Mackenzie entertained at tea at the Empress Hotel Saturday afternoon, among her guests being Mrs. I. M. Thompson (Vancouver), Mrs. W. G. Maclaren, Mrs. Gorman, Mrs. B. Brocklebank, Miss J. Brocklebank, Mrs. J. K. Cornwall, Miss Peace Cornwall, Miss Nora Cornwall, Mrs. Mullins (Toronto), Mrs. A. Reid (Toronto), Mrs. D. Edwards, Miss Beth Thompson (Vancouver). Mrs. Thompson poured tea.

Uncle Wiggily's Big Horn

By HOWARD R. GARIS

Thes day after the New Year of 1933, when it came to live in Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow, the rabbit gentleman, who had been up late the night before, hopped out to get some fresh air.

"Well," said Mr. Longears as he hopped along twinkling his pink nose, "I hope I have as much fun in this new year as I did in the old one. I certainly had some jolly adventures in 1932."

He felt so happy as he thought of his adventures that he twinkled his pink nose. Seeing which, a little Snow Bug, who was crawling along the path, asked:

"Could you give me a light, Mr Rabbit?"

"A light!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily. "From what?"

"Why aren't you smoking a cigar?" asked the Snow Bug. "I see a red light near your nose and surely smoke is coming out of your mouth."

"Ha! Ha! Ha!" laughed Uncle Wiggily as he saw what a mistake the Snow Bug had made. "That red light you see is my pink nose twinkling and the smoke is my warm breath being changed to fog in the cold air."

"Oh, so it is!" whispered the Snow Bug.

"But why did you want a light?" asked Mr. Longears. "It isn't dark yet."

"I want a light to make a fire so I may warm myself," said the Snow Bug. "I'm cold."

"Oh, I'll help you make a fire," spoke the rabbit gentleman. He had some matches and, finding some dried leaves and sticks inside a hollow log, soon made a fire for the cold Snow Bug who sat down on a pebble near it and warmed his six legs one after the other.

"Thank you, Uncle Wiggily!" murmured the Snow Bug as the rabbit gentleman hopped on his way.

"You are quite welcome," answered Mr. Longears, and he twinkled his pink nose more brightly than before and blew out great clouds of what looked like smoke. All of a sudden, Mr. Longears hopped over the fields, through the woods, up hill and down hill, he saw near the edge of a frozen brook a large horn. Oh, it was a very big horn of shiny brass. The sort of a horn the man in the band has to get inside of before he can carry it in the parade.

"There's and umpity ump horn!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily, as soon as he saw it. "That's the big horn that was blowing last night keeping me awake because of the New Year. I wonder who was blowing it?"

Uncle Wiggily looked all around and up and down the frozen brook but he saw no one who might have been blowing the big New Year horn.

"I guess whoever was blowing it," said the rabbit gentleman, "got tired and went home, leaving the horn here. But I'd like to find out who owns this umpity ump horn. So I'll wait and see if they come back."

Uncle Wiggily sat down on a stump near the big horn, but soon the cold wind began to blow and Mr. Longears was chilly. He was warm enough while hopping around but it was cold sitting still.

Then the rabbit gentleman looked at the big bell shaped end of the large horn—the end out of which the umpity ump sound comes when someone blows on the mouth end.

"I think if I hopped up and snuggled down inside the big end of the horn I would be warm," said the rabbit. "I can wait inside the horn as well as outside."

No sooner said than done. Giving a strong spring, Uncle Wiggily jumped up into the horn and settled down inside. It was so warm and cozy there that soon the bunny uncle had fallen asleep. He had a funny dream. He dreamed he was home in his bungalow and that Nurse Jane and his wife were tossing him up and down in a pillow case to awaken him.

Then, all of a sudden, Uncle Wiggily really awakened and he found himself being bounced up and down, but in the horn, not in a pillow case. And there was a rumbilly umbilly, umpity ump sound and then, all of a sudden there was a loud blast: "Toot! Toot! Toot!" and Uncle Wiggily found himself flying through the air. He had been blown right out of the horn where he had fallen asleep and he landed in a soft snow bank when he came down, so he wasn't hurt.

"But who blew me out of the horn?" asked the rabbit, looking around.

"I did, but I didn't know you were in there, Uncle Wiggily!" said a loud voice and there stood a big circus Elephant gentleman laughing. "I was out celebrating New Year's last night," said the Elephant. "I got the biggest horn I could but blowing it made me dry so I left it here and went looking for a hole in the frozen brook so I could get a drink. Now I have wet my whistle, so I came back to blow again."

"Well, it was quite a blow you gave me!" chuckled Mr. Longears. Then the Elephant played a fine tune on the big horn and the bunny hopped home to his bungalow.

And if the hammer will please stop hitting the nail on the head every time it stands up on a piece of wood, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the lost dog.

WRY NECK MAY BE DUE TO DIFFICULTY IN SIGHT

* * * * * *

Twisting of Head Sometimes Results From Child's Effort to Focus the Eye Properly; Infection Is Frequent Cause

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

When a child's neck appears to be twisted so that the head leans or is tilted toward one shoulder or the other, it is said to have a wry neck or twisted neck.

There are various causes for this condition. Sometimes an accident at birth may be responsible. This is apparently due to the fact the muscles on one side have contracted.

The expert who takes care of the patient can relieve this contraction in various ways. Sometimes an infection will get in to the muscles of the neck, and, by producing pain, tenderness and swelling, cause pulling of the head to one side or the other.

Again a twisted neck may be due to a tuberculous infection of the bones of the spine in the neck region. There may be also paralyses of the nerves which stimulate these muscles and such paralyses may bring about twisting.

Finally, as Dr. I. M. Levin points out in a recent discussion of the subject, twisting of the head may result from difficulties of vision or imbalance of the muscles of the eyes, which cause the child to use one eye much more than the other, and to twist its head in order to focus the eye properly. This may occur also in case of double vision due to some difficulty of proper acommodation of the eyes to seeing.

There have been a considerable number of cases of this type which have been treated by all sorts of measures applied to the muscles of the neck, but which were not corrected until the eyes were investigated. In one case it was not noticed that the eyes were improperly balanced until the neck was straightened and the head held rigid by means of the brace, whereupon one of the eyes promptly turned upward.

It is, of course, realized that prolonged twisting of the head in one position finally results in changes in the muscles, the ligaments and the bones which may be permanent, and there may be even brought about a twisting of the whole face.

In such conditions it is necessary for the authority in diseases of the eye to combine his attention with that of a specialist in bones, muscles and joints, so that not only will the condition of the eyes be relieved, but also proper attention paid to readjustment of the nerves, muscles and bones

Laurel and Hardy At the Dominion

Had army officials refused permission to loan tanks for use in the making of the latest Laurel and Hardy feature-length comedy, "Pack Up Your Troubles," which is showing at the Dominion Theatre to-day, the picture would probably never have been filmed.

And this fact would have been regrettable, for the comedy is considered one of the funniest thus far produced by the inimitable comedians. In the story there is a long, humorous sequence which takes place in the front line trenches.

Laurel and Hardy are a couple of misfit buck privates. Their pal gets lost in No Man's Land, and they are ordered to rescue him. They become entangled in a couple of tanks, and what happens is reported to be one of the many amusing highlights of the picture.

TOM MIX NOW AT COLUMBIA

Although he likes ships and water as much as the next fellow, Tom Mix revised the nautical adage to "join the army and see the world." The monarch of all the cowboy actors joined four times in fact—just to make a good job of it.

Leaving his birthplace, on the plains near El Paso, Texas, Mix used his riding and shooting ability, first, in the Spanish American War. Then he shipped for China with a gun unit and saw exciting service in the Battle of Tientsin. After that, he joined up again for service in the Boer War, and followed that with several exciting months in the Madero Revolution.

The famous westen actor, who is playing in Universal's "Hidden Gold" now at the Columbia Theatre, has also been a sherrif, a U.S. Marshall, a Texas Ranger and a mediator to the Indians.

PLAYHOUSE

WESTERN STORY AT PLAYHOUSE

El Coyote—mysterious rider of the night—swings in and out of the plot of "The Gay Caballero," now at the Playhouse Theatre, with all the daring of the romantic knights of history, yet the scene of the stirring Fox action drama is Arizona and the time is the present day.

The mystery of El Coyote's identity remains unsolved throughout the telling of the story, although suspicion points at one time or another to practically every male member of the powerful cast. These include O'Brien and Victor McLaglen, who are featured; C. Henry Gordon, Weldon Helburn and Willard Roberston.

Conchita Montenegro and Linda Watkins, both of whom were named Fox Debutante Stars at the start of the current season, have the feminine leads, Conchita as a fiery daughter of Spain and Miss Watkins as an American.

MYSTERY DRAMA AT THE CAPITOL

That jolly toast: "Here's to our wives and sweethearts may they never meet," might well be the hope of the tired business men who pose as models of civic purity in RKO-Radio's "The Phantom of Crestwood," now showing at the Capitol Theatre.

One of the tense moments in this cinema occurs when Karen Morley, playing a calculating adventuress, forces a group of men to entertain her in the presence of their highly respectable wives.

In a truly all-featured cast are Ricardo Cortez, H. B. Warner, Ivan Simpson, Pauline Frederick, Aileen Pringle, Mary Duncan, Robert Elliott, Hilda Vaughn, Robert McWade, Geo. E. Stone, Sam Hardy, Gavin Gordon, "Skeets" Gallagher, Matty Kemp, Tom Douglas, Anita Louise and Clarence F. Wilson, all of them suspects in the picture.

"Thark" Playing At Empire Theatre

Ralph Lynn and Tom Walls in "Thark," is now at the Empire Theatre.

In "Thark," the latest Aldwych farce to be filmed by British and Dominions, Ben Travers has concocted a veritable feast of funny situations, and as the story concerns a haunted country house, in which Ralph Lynn and Tom Walls elect to stay, riotously funny things happened.

Mary Brough, Robertson Hare and Claude Hulbert are also in this picture.

2 Different Methods of Shopping

WHICH DO YOU USE?

There are two methods of shopping. But which method you use makes a great deal of difference, since you always want satisfaction from the things you buy.

Some people shop in such a trustful fashion. They merely ask for a can of peaches, a tube of tooth-paste or a box of aspirin. Because they never specify what brands they want, they are always at the mercy of the clerk. No wonder people who buy this way are often so dissatisfied!

Other shoppers, who know by experience or the reputations of certain products which brands are dependable, ask for these brands specifically by name. And they insist on getting the products they ask for, even though some clerk may urge them to try something "just as good."

Isn't it better to buy this way? Isn't it wiser to ask for what you want, what you know is always good—refusing other products of which you know nothing?

Stores which try to sell you unknown products in place of those you ask for, usually do so for a selfish purpose. The dealer often reaps an extra profit, or the clerk a commission, by switching you to the unknown merchandise!

Many of the best stores everywhere forbid this practise. When you buy from them you are always sure of getting exactly what you ask for, with full value in the merchandise you want for every penny you spend.

But if you are offered something "just as good" as the thing you ask for, refuse it! Demand packaged products which you know by experience, by brand, or by the reputations of their makers. You will often see such products advertised in this newspaper.

Ask for what you want! Insist on getting it! Millions of women have found this simple rule the surest guide to shopping satisfaction.

AUSTRIAN FARM REVOLT GROWS

Highways Leading to Vorau Barricaded With Barbed Wire and Machine Guns

Associated Press

Graz, Austria, Jan. 2.—Police and troops had taken precautionary measures to-day to forestall violence growing out of a threatened march of farmers against the city hall at Hartberg near Vorau.

All highways approaching Vorau were barricaded with barbed wire and at several points machine guns were posted. Authorities hoped, however, to break up any incipient rioting with tear gas bombs.

The situation was largely a result of a farmers' revolt against the authorities' attempt to compel payment of sickness insurance and other social benefit premiums by employes of farm labor. There was danger that the trouble might spread through all Styria.

No serious clashes were reported this forenoon.

The police were compelled to use bayonets to disperse a crowd which stormed the city hall at Vorau Friday and a few days before two officials who tried to auction a hog for taxes at Rechberg were manhandled by a crowd.

WINNIPEG FIRM LOSES IN FIRE

Winnipeg, Jan. 2—Believed to have originated on the premises of Foote and James, photographers, fire caused damage to the Cadomin Building here tentatively estimated at $30,000, and gave firemen a two-hour battle before it was extinguished Saturday.

The blaze did some damage to stock of the Bren Motor Company on the ground floor of the building. Losses suffered in the fire were partially covered by insurance.

The new year opened unluckily for seven employees of the Canada Metal-wares Company, who were to have started back to work Tuesday after a prolonged period of idleness. Fire swept the plant yesterday with an estimated loss of $3,000.

NO INJUNCTION ON CLUB SCHEME

Winnipeg, Jan. 2.—Application for an interim injunction to restrain the Amalgamated Business Men's Club from selling its memberships in Manitoba had been dismissed by Chief Justice Macdonald. The application was made by the Attorney-General's Department but the Chief Justice held the club did not come within the purview of the Security Frauds Prevention Act because it was not trading in securities.

The club's method of doing business was parallel to that of the so-called "pyramid clubs," members obtaining commissions on the sale of membership cards.

LADYSMAN TO BE FAVORITE

Will Probably Rule Winter Book as Popular Choice to Win Kentucky Derby

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 2.—Last year's two-year-olds are three-year-olds now, since January 1 is the official birthday of all thoroughbred race horses, and all 1932 juveniles are potential winners of the 1933 Kentucky Derby, to be raced at Churchill Downs May 6.

W. R. Coe's Ladysman, winner of the Hopeful Stakes and other fixtures, probably will rule the winter book favorite for the derby. Colonel E. R. Bradley, whose record of three derby victories thrilled all Kentucklans, says his main reliance this year will be Bollermaker, sired by the famed Bubbling Over.

C. V. Whitney, whose father, Harry Payne Whitney, won two derbys, will have a strong entry in The Darb, winner of the Kentucky Jockey Club Stakes and Caterwaul. Whitney's last two derby hopes, Equipoise and Top Flight, did not get to the post in the $50,000 classic.

L. Rosenberg's Kerry Patch, surprise winner of the Belmont Futurity, is a principal contender, as is Willis Sharpe Kilmer's Sun Archer. The rigors of training cut down many aspirants last year, but if the fates are kind, the many leading juveniles of last year should present a brilliant field in this year's derby.

TOM MIX IS NOT TO RETIRE YET

Chicago, Jan. 2.—Tom Mix, hero of many a western film thriller, has no intention of retiring permanently from the movies, he announced upon his arrival here yesterday with his wife.

But, he said, he does object to the way the life of the west is being changed to suit scenarios, adding that he was out until he is given a picture showing things as they are in western ranges.

FOUR KILLED IN ONTARIO

Deaths Mar New Year's Eve Celebrations in Eastern Province

Canadian Press

Toronto, Jan. 2.—Accompanied by near zero weather, 1933 was ushered into Ontario's cities, towns and hamlets in the time-honored way. After a heavy rain early Saturday temperatures dropped swiftly until the New Year came in temperatures ranging from below zero in the north to ten above at more southerly points.

Four people died suddenly from various accidents on the highway, and in one case as a direct result of a New Year's Eve celebration with the law's edict that all celebrations must halt at midnight, the fireworks, siren-blowing, horn-tooting and bells ringing the death-knell of 1932 brought festivities to a close generally all over the province. Watch-night services were held in churches.

Frank Chands, sixty-two, of Charlotteville, was struck and killed by an automobile as he walked along the highway at Glenshee. Motorcycle Officer Joseph W. Ferrari, twenty-four of Toronto, was killed when hurled from his machine after being struck by a car driven by Austin Burns. Burns was charged with manslaughter.

At Peterboro, Frederick Fletcher, thirty-eight, while at New Year's Eve party was allegedly struck over the eye and fell to the bottom of a flight of stairs. He died in hospital yesterday from a fractured skull as a result of the fall, and five men at the party were held for investigation.

William Copeland, fifty-year-old Kingsville tobacco buyer, was found dead about three miles east of Leamington. Investigation showed that his car had stalled in heavy going and apparently he collapsed as he went for aid.

DRAMA FESTIVAL GROUP TO MEET

The general meeting of the British Columbia Drama Festival Association to be held Thursday at the Crystal Gardens Theatre at 8 o'clock will tend to focus the interest in this movement which has recently become wide spread. The provincial association is taking an active part in furthering the interests of the Governor-General's Dominion Drama Festival, which will take place in Ottawa this year for the first time. From present indications there will be even more entries in this year's provincial festival than there were in the very successful festival held last spring.

The difficulty of obtaining a competent outside adjudicator for the festival has kept the executive busy, but it is rumored that the services of a distinguished Canadian actress may possibly be secured this year.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By SISTER MARY

Many people like to entertain informally, so a menu for a simple afternoon tea and also one for an evening supper are suggested:

Afternoon Tea
Rolled Sandwiches
Checkerboard Sandwiches
Christmas Cookies Salted Nuts
Candy
Tea Coffee

ROLLED SANDWICHES

Cut the crust from a brick-shaped loaf of bread. Cut in very thin slices lengthwise of the loaf and spread with creamed butter. The butter should be really creamed to the consistency of thick cream. Spread with the following filling and roll up firmly like a jelly roll. Wrap in waxed paper and chill for an hour or two. Then cut in thin slices for serving.

FILLING

Three packages cream cheese, 2 teaspoons anchovy paste, 1 teaspoon prepared mustard, ¾ teaspoon Worchestershire sauce, ¼ teaspoon paprika, 1 teaspoon minced parsely.

Mix the ingredients with a fork adding cream is necessary to make easy to spread.

CHECKERBOARD SANDWICHES

These sandwiches are made with brown and white breads. Cut bread in slices one-half inch thick and spread with creamed butter. Make a pile of alternate slices of brow and white, putting four slices in the pile. Make another pile with the colors reversed. Place both piles in the refrigerator under a weight for an hour or longer to be sure the slices are pressed firmly together. Next cut one-half inch slices from both piles. Butter the first slice and place a slice from the second pile over it, spead with butter and top with the third slice of bread which was cut from the second pile. Spread with butter and cover with the fourth slice which was cut from the first pile. This, as you see, makes the colors alternate. Put the piles of bread formed the second time under a weight in the refrigerator and cut in slices as thin as you please.

SUPPER MENU

Oysters and Mushrooms a la King on Toast
Olives Stuffed Celery
Radishes Pickles
Frozen Layer Cake
Nuts Candy
Coffee

FROZEN LAYER CAKE

Four layers of fine-grained plain butter cake, 2 cups whipping cream, 1 tablespoon granulated gelatine, 4 tablespoons cold water, 2-3 cup powdered sugar, few grains salt, 1 square bitter chocolate, 4 tablespoons granulated sugar, 3 tablespoons boiling water, ½ teaspoon vanilla, 4 tablespoons raspberry jam.

Bake the cake and let it cool thoroughly before putting in mold. Soften gelatine in cold water and dissolve over hot water. Whip cream until stiff and slowly beat in powdered sugar and salt. Strain dissolved gelatine into cream and mix gently. Put one cup of cream into a bowl and flavor with vanilla. Put a layer of cake in a spring-form mold and cover with vanilla cream. To another cup of whipped cream add the jam. Force jam through fine sieve to remove seeds before combining with cream. Put the second layer of cake on the first layer and cover with jam mixture. Melt chocolate over hot water, stir in sugar and slowly add boiling water. Let cool and add to remaining whipped cream. Mix lightly. Put third layer of cake in the mold and cover with chocolate mixture. Cover with last layer of cake. Cover mold with heavy waxed paper and place in freezing tray of automatic refrigerator. Freeze four hours or longer. If this dessert is not frozen in a refrigerator put it in a mold that can be packed in ice and salt. When ready to serve remove from mold and cover with one cup of cream whipped until firm and lightly sweetened and flavored with a suggestion of wintergreen.

TO-MORROW'S MENU

Breakfast: Tangerines, crisp bacon, soft cooked eggs, whole wheat muffins, milk, coffee.

Luncheon: Baked carrot cups stuffed with chopped meat and rice, cress with French dressing, apple sauce, cake, milk, tea.

Dinner: Ragout of lamb, scalloped sweet potatoes and apples, spinach and egg salad, upside-down cake, milk, coffee.

FEWER JOIN UNEMPLOYED

Seasonal Reduction in December Below Average For Eleven Years

The seasonal falling-off in employment recorded on December 1 was on a much smaller scale than on the same date of last year, and was also less than the average decline recorded at the beginning of December in the last eleven years, according to figures received in Victoria to-day from the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

The 8,061 firms reporting their payrolls to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics employed 765,441 persons on December 1, compared with 779,015 in the preceding month. The index number on December 1 was 83.2, a fractional increase over the November 1 figure, after seasonal adjustment.

Large losses were indicated in construction, and there were smaller reductions in manufacturing, transportation, mining and services. On the other hand, considerable seasonal improvement was reported in logging and trade, and shipping also afforded increased employment. Within the manufacturing group, improvement took place in rubber, tobacco and iron and steel plants; the gains in the trades were mainly due to the resumption of operations in large railway car shops which had been closed for a few weeks.

Montreal and Windsor and the adjacent border cities showed improvement as compared with November 1, while lessened activity was reported in Quebec City, Toronto, Ottawa, Hamilton, Winnipeg and Vancouver.

CHILE LEADER GIVES PLANS

Political, Economic, Social and Moral Reconstruction Alessandri's Aim

Associated Press

Santiago, Chile, Jan. 2.—President Arturo Alessandri, who began his term of office nine days ago, issued a manifesto to-day demanding reconstruction of Chile politically, economically, socially and morally.

The President, who called himself a practical Socialist in contrasting his views with the extreme Socialist regime of last summer, outlined this programme:

Political decentralization and the organization of provincial assemblies.

Efforts to re-establish peace in South America.

A policy of seeing commercial treaties.

Development of industrial production, agriculture, mining and commerce.

Organization of the productivity of the land for benefit of the community.

Expropriation of unproductive lands.

The return of the largest possible number of men to agricultural pursuits.

The subdivision of property as a means of ending unemployment.

Senor Alessandri said the real situation of the national finances should be exposed, and that the nation had not yet suffered all it had to suffer before saving the financial structure.

BIG DEFICIT

He said the projected 1933 budget expenses of 1,050,000,000 pesos (about $63,000,000), and income of 520,000,000 pesos (about $31,200,000), were showing a deficit of 540,000,000 pesos (about $32,400,000), in addition to an existing deficit of 261,000,000 pesos (about $15,660,000).

The President added this could not be balanced by the reduction of salaries of public officials except the highest. He declared unnecessary organization and superfluous posts must be suppressed.

FUNERAL TUESDAY

Funeral services for Mrs. Ann Heap will be held to-morrow afternoon at Christ Church Cathedral. Dean Quainton will officiate at 2.30 o'clock. Interment will be in the family plot at Royal Oak Burial Park.

ACCORD 1933 BIG WELCOME

Gay Parties and Solemn Watchnight Services Are Held in Victoria

Everything Less Expensive, But Not Less Enthusiastic; London Broadcast Heard

Victoria greeted the New Year less expensively than former years, but not the less enthusiastically and hopefully.

More than 3,000 persons at a dozen big functions, and many hundreds more at scores of large private parties, danced the New Year in Saturday night.

Many hundreds who accepted the passing of the old year and the advent of the new as not an occasion for revelry, met 1933 in prayer amid the solemnity of watchnight services in the churches and cathedrals.

The downtown streets were well filled with cheering and singing throngs, afoot and in motor cars, as the midnight hour approached, to be heralded by the carillon from the tower of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church and the chimes from Christ Church Cathedral, above a more distant roar of whistles from boats in the harbor and plants in the factory district.

PEAK OF REVELRY AT MIDNIGHT

At the big dances and parties, everything was timed so that the revelry reached its peak as the hands of the clock came together on the midnight hour. Orchestras blazed out "Auld Lang Syne" in jazz time, confetti or bright streamers shot out in spray, colored balloons were let loose on the scenes of gayety, and every imaginable noisemaker was called into service as the light were extinguished in the time-honored manner for customary first greetings.

On the streets there was not much confetti and there were not so many paper or feather ticklers in evidence as in years past, but there was not a motor car whose electric horn was not set going to make one mighty din, heightened by the setting off of bombs, crackers and the purposeful back-firing of some automobiles.

The fact that the New Year came in on Sunday morning was not allowed to interfere with the revelry. The dancing and revelry at most parties was continued unrestrained until 2 o'clock on the Sabbath. After that it was continued in a hilarious manner until daylight by crowds who jammed the all-night downtown restaurants, to get their final cup of coffee for the night or some ham and eggs at what night have been their normal breakfast hour.

BIG FUNCTIONS

Among the big public functions were those at the Empress Hotel, the Colwood Golf and Country Club, the Royal Victoria Yacht Club, the Crystal Garden upper dance, halls as well as in the Crystal Garden little theatre hall, the Canadian Scottish dance at the Armories, the military affair at Work Point Barracks, the combined Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A. dances at the Y.W.C.A., a big party at the Beach Hotel, a public dance at the Shrine Temple and the J.B.A.A. party at its club house. Outside the city there were also gay affairs at such popular resorts at the Belvedree Hotel at Sooke and McMoran's at Cordova Bay.

Members crowded the returned soldiers' clubs in town during the evening and an outpouring of friendship marked the occasion.

The beer parlors outside the city in Esquimalt and right up the Island were jammed during the whole evening by year-end celebrants. They expressed disappointment when they were turned out at the regular closing hour, just too early to give them the chance to welcome the New Year with a brimming, frothing cup.

ECONOMIZE ON LIQUOR

Officials at the government liquor stores did a rushing business in the last few hours of Saturday before their regular closing time. However, they said the volume of purchases was nothing like that of former years, only one bottle being bought by persons, who, on former occasions, would take anywhere from two to half a dozen for their evening party.

EARLY START BY RADIO

Victoria really began participating in the actual welcoming of 1933 in the middle of the afternoon when the radio brought the tolling of Big Ben and the midnight outbursts in London. From 8 o'clock on in the evening there came in here the midnight outbursts on the streets and in the hotels of the eastern cities on this continent. From then on until the hour struck here, the celebrations in other cities of earlier meridian across the continent were brought over the hook-ups of the broadcasting companies. Some of the radio fans, who were not devoting themselves to celebrating in other ways, busied themselves in following the advent of the new year by radio on across the Pacific, through Honolulu and to the Orient.

THE TINYWHITES

Story by HAL COCHRAN — Pictures by GEORGE SCARR

(READ THE STORY THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

"I'm just as scared as I can be to yank the big propeller. Gee! I fear that it will knock me flat," said Duncy, with a frown.

"If someone else is game to try, so we can ride out through the sky, they'd best be very careful, so as not to get slapped down."

"Now, wait a minute," Scouty cried. "There'll be no trouble 'bout this ride. The airplane has a starter that will make the engine run. Now all somebody has to do is step right on it with his shoe. Hey, Windy, try it out. You'll find how easily it is done."

"All right," said Windy. "I am game, but don't you lads give me the blame if everything goes wrong as soon as I try out my luck."

"I hope, as all you Tinies know, that I can make the engine go, but something else may happen. Then, of course, we will be stuck."

He hopped in, anxious as could be, and stepped upon the starter. Whee! The engine promptly roared and Coppy shouted, "It's all right.

"Just let it heat a little bit and then the fine plane will be fit to take us soaring through the air. I'll bet we'll be a sight."

Their friend, the little elf, then cried, "I hope you have luck on your ride. I must be leaving you right now, to go back to my home.

"I trust you lads all realize you must be careful in the skies. Play safe and do not fool around, wherever you may roam."

The elf then left and Scouty cried, "Well, let's get going on our ride. They all climbed on the little plane and soon rose in the air.

Some birds soared by. The lads had fun when Coppy neatly lassoed one. It flew along beside the plane, though given quite a scare.

Australian Cricketers Score 191 Runs In Second Innings

THE SPORTS MIRROR

Bradman May Want to Capitalize on His Great Feats of the Past

* * *

Helen Wills Moody's Great Record Never Before Equaled

BOWES'S CLEAN bowling of Don Bradman on the first ball in the second test match at Melbourne will not help the great Australian batsman at all. One Victoria cricket enthusiast thinks that Bradman did not show any great keeness to play in the present test series, not particularly because he was sick or because of the player-writer rule, but because he has an eye to a career of cashing in on his great record of the past and he realizes just about everything he does now and in the future would be in the nature of an anti-climax to what he accomplished in the last test series in the Old Country, when as a young man of twenty-one he burst upon an astonished England, averaged well over 100 runs per test match and chalked up 334 in one innings of the series.

* * *

Don Bradman may follow other great sport players into article writing, stage appearances and advertising endorsement, and is reluctant to jeopardize his cash value. If this is true, Don is probably adopting the right policy, for already this year he has had several innings in Australia in which he has failed to break into double figures, and now comes the ignominious first ball "duck's egg," the nightmare of every novice.

* * *

Bradman's Canadian tour certainly did not decrease his reputation, for centuries poured off his educated bat and he easily outdistanced all his teammates. While his 334 of the 1930 English series is a record for test matches and while it was he who, more than anyone else, helped take the "ashes" back to Australia, he has in Australian interstate matches made 340, not out, and 452, and has been the greatest cricketing sensation produced in a great cricketing country.

* * *

In the three matches the touring Australians played here, Victoria enthusiasts had an unusual opportunity of gauging the all-round excellence of the team, and their verdict generally was that it was "some eleven." Some idea of the quality of the team the Englishmen are now playing and which they trounced decisively in the first match, can be got from the fact that only three men of the Canadian tour were playing. Practically all the rest were considered below test match calibre. The three selected were Richardson, Kippax and McCabe, while in the second game Kippax, the great stylist, was dropped, and Bradman joined the team.

* * *

Some people here are wondering why the youthful and self-confident "googly" bowler, Fleetwood-Smith, has not been given a chance in either game. He made a great impression here, not only with the spectators but also on the British Columbians' wickets. Perhaps there are several reasons; his inexperience, his unimpressiveness at bat and the serious illness he suffered in California just before the team sailed home and which necessitated his being placed on the boat by his teammates and being handled with care all the way across. This illness may have prevented him from getting sufficient practice prior to the series, though his remarkable bowling performance in a Sheffield Shield match the other day indicated he was back in form. It would not be surprising if he got a chance before the destiny of the "ashes" is determined.

It has just been brought to light that Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, premier woman tennis player in the world, has not lost a set of singles since June 21, 1927. The match took place at Wimbledon and the player to whom went the honor of winning the set was Miss Gwenyth Sterry. The match was in the first round of the all-England championship and it was the second set that went to the British girl 6-3. The other two sets were taken by Mrs. Moody.

* * *

Since that day Mrs. Moody has never required more than two sets to defeat any woman opponent she has met across the net, and she has played the best the world could muster. In championship matches at Wimbledon, Auteuil and Forest Hills, in Wightman Cup matches in England and the U.S. and in exhibition and invitation tournament she has been invincible. No other player in the history of tennis, not even Suzanne Lenglen, Henri Cochet or Bill Tilden, has matched this record. Mrs. Moody has had some close calls but has always rallied to come out on top. To-day Mrs. Moody shows little sign of any waning of her powers.

Bradman Puts On 103 Not Out As Bowlers Dominate

Famous Batsman Only Member of Aussie Team Able to Hit English Bowling

Englishmen Need 251 Runs to Win

England Dismissed For First Innings Total of 169; Record Crowd Attends

Melbourne, Jan. 2. — Before a world record crowd of 68,188 and led by the talented Don Bradman, the Australian cricket eleven concluded their second innings in the second test match with England and were all out for 191.

Australia had finished ahead of England in the first inning play, the Antipodeans scoring 228 against the 169 knocked up by the English eleven.

To-day's play again saw the English bowlers delivering in devastating fashion, and were it not for the sparkling 103 not out by Bradman the Aussie score would have been dismal.

Bradman redeemed himself to-day after his tragic display in the first innings when he was dismissed for a duck, being clean bowled on the first ball by Bowes. Bradman, holder of many world cricket records for batting, was forced out of the first test through illness and only took part in the second when he was released from a contract which called for him to write the series for a newspaper. This action was necessary owing to the Australian Cricket Control Board refusing Bradman the right to play and write the matches.

BOWLERS DOMINATE

To-day's play was again marked by the sensational work of the bowlers. In former test series the batsmen have dominated the play and for a time it was considered widening and raising the wickets.

In order to win the second test the touring English players must score 251 runs in their second innings.

With the score board reading 161 for nine wickets the Englishmen came to bat to-day against the bowling of Tom Wall and W. J. O'Reilly, and were able to score only eight runs before being dismissed.

The second match appeared to have developed into a battle of bowlers and the batsmen have two more days to make much headway against the bowling of William Voce, Harold Larwood and G. V. Allen, were all out for what would ordinarily have been a dismal test match score.

Smarting under a ten-wicket defeat in the first test at Sydney early last month the Antipodeans sent out O'Reilly and Wall, whose bowling was even more effective against the Englishmen than their's had been against the Aussies.

The English team immediately commenced its innings with Sutcliffe and Leyland in calm form, but play was closed for the day with the score at 43 for no wickets.

The score card:

Australia, first inning, 228; second inning, 191.

English first inning, 169.

Australia second inning:

M'GOWAN BURNS UP ICE TO WIN OVER CHAMPION

St. Paul Professional Surprises By Double Victory Over Irving Jaffee

Jaffee, Winner at Olympics, Wins One Race; Two Unofficial Marks Set

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 2—Everett McGowan, St. Paul professional, surprised skating fans yesterday by defeating Irving Jaffee, youthful Olympic champion, in two out of three exhibition races, in which two unofficial world records were set.

McGowan won the 500 and 1,500-meter events, setting a time of 2.38 for the latter distance, announced by race officials as seven and eight-tenths seconds faster than the indoor mark set by Ivar Ballengrud, Norway, in a Post-Olympic race at Chicago last February.

Jaffee, who won his Olympic laurels at the longer distances, took the third race, 3,000 meters, in 15.37.8, said to be a professional record for indoors since the previous mark under the metric system, recently adopted, was made on outdoor ice.

ROYALS WIN OVER SAINTS

Coulter Leads New Westminster Football Team to 5 to 3 Victory

LEAGUE STANDING

| | P. | W. | L. | D. | Pts. |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Westminster Royals | 2 | 2 | 0 | 0 | 4 |
| St. Andrew's | 2 | 1 | 0 | 1 | 3 |

| St. Saviour's | 2 | 1 | 1 | 0 | 2 |
| Victoria | 5 | 1 | 4 | 0 | 2 |

Standing out in something like their old form, Westminster Royals rattled in two goals in the first ten minutes of Saturday's Coast Intercity League game at Con Jones Park, and although St. Saviours recovered well enough to level the score at 2 to 2 within a minute of the game restarting in the second half, the Westminster eleven came back and were deservedly rewarded with three more goals to finally run out winners 5 to 3.

This was the Royals' first victory this season on a Vancouver ground, apart from the Birks Cup final against Regents on the opening day of the season, both their other triumphs having been obtained in Victoria and Nanaimo.

St. Saviours made three changes from the side which on last Monday, Rothweiler resuming at centre-forward, Edwards playing outside right in place of Moffat, who is sick, and Wilkinson of Renfrew Argyles being given a trial at inside right. Royals had Stobbart for Stoddart at right-half and Strang on the extreme right in place of George West.

MOCK FUNERAL

Prior to the match Westminster staged a mock funeral as a protest to the statement in the evening contemporary that they were disbanding, the players and officials, armed with spades and pickaxes, following a dummy on a stretcher, labelled "Buried by the Sun-rays." Whether the team was incensed at the rumor or not, the fact remains that they went into the game fighting mad and there was a marked improvement in their play. Coulter led the Royals' attack with three goals, while Strang got the other two. Rothweiler and Wilkinson scored for the Saints.

MONTREAL VICTORIAS WIN

New York, Jan. 2—Montreal Victorias defeated the Crescent A.C., Brooklyn, 5 to 4, in an exhibition hockey game here yesterday afternoon.

Armour's Chin Kept "Behind Ball"

By JOE GLASS

We hear a lot about keeping the eye on the ball when hitting it. What is really meant is that we must keep the head in place. Keeping the eye on the ball will not, in itself, get good results. You can sway your body, lift your head, drop your shoulders and still keep your eye on the ball.

If the head is kept in place, however, the body is likely to keep in place. And putting the eye on the ball is merely one aid to getting the head fixed in its proper position. The turning of the body on the axis of the spine must not much disturb this position of the head.

After a great iron shot, Tommy Armour explained that he probably pulled it off because he "kept his chin back of the ball." He meant by this that he did not turn his head to see where the shot was going until the ball was on its way.

Pay attention to keeping your chin "behind the ball." You will benefit. (Copyright, 1933, Publishers Syndicate)

Patrick, Turgoose And Forbes Star In B.C. Rugby Win

Score Four of Northerners' Tries With McInnes Converting Two in California

VISITORS GAIN 19 TO 0 VICTORY

After Crushing Defeat Saturday, Southerners Rearrange Line For To-day

Los Angeles, Jan. 2.—A revamped lineup will be put on the field to-day by the Southern California Rugby Union team against the British Columbia All-Stars, who vanquished the locals quite handily Saturday, 19 to 0.

Instead of a scrum line of eight stalwarts and seven speedy hopes in the back field, the Californians will present only seven in the forward line.

Bill Eckhartsberg is slated for the backfield as a fifth three-quarter along with two halfbacks and a fullback to enhance both defensive and offensive power behind the line.

An attack of flu knocked Captain Roy Tisdall out of the Southern California lineup yesterday. The former Sandhurst Military Academy and British Army Office stalwart will be replaced as one of the seven forwards by Kenny Sagar.

The captaincy will be held by Ray Barry, Dublin exponent of the game and fullback of the local fifteen.

TOO MUCH PATRICK

It was a case of too much Patrick and Turgoose in the Canadians' triumph Saturday. They dominated the field and despite aggressive work by such forwards as Tyson, Heilbron and Tisdall, the Californians were unable to score.

Barnett, a local three-quarter, was forced out of the game for a time with a severely wrenched ankle.

LOCALS SCORE

Lynn Patrick opened the scoring for the British Columbians, going over on a pretty backfield movement, Bruce Forbes showed the way for the next counter before Patrick, working beautifully with Turgoose, got across again. Mercer added another try. Roddy McInnes converted two of the tries.

The final score came when a passing rush from a scrum on the five-yard line put Cleveland over at the corner. McInnis missed narrowly, leaving the score: Canada, 19; Southern California, 0.

Tyson and Heilbron each contributed a sensational dash down the field into Canadian territory in the dying moments of the game, but could not cross the line. Obviously, the "V" on the Canadian sweaters stood not only for Vancouver and Victoria but also vim, vigor and vitality. They were in much too good condition for the Southerners.

The Line-ups

SAANICH AND WESTS DRAW

Coast League Soccer Elevens Battle to 2 to 2 Draw After Hard Match

Esquimalt Turns Back Victoria City 3 to 1; John Watt Scores Pair of Goals

Saturday's first division matches in the Coast Football League saw Esquimalt defeat Victoria City 3 to 1 at Heywood Avenue and strengthen their hold on first place, and the Saanich Thistles and Victoria West play to a 2 to 2 deadlock at lower Beacon Hill. The latter was a keenly-fought affair with Saanich deadlocking the score late in the second half.

Playing in the second division the Saanich Thistles defeated Victoria City 4 to 3 at Spencer's Park. The second match between Victoria West and Esquimalt was postponed, on account of the latter club being unable to field a team.

All matches were played on muddy grounds, with a heavy downpour of rain during the greater part of the time. The ball soon became water soaked, making it hard to control and resulting in plenty of miskicking.

WESTS PRESS

Kicking down the slope with the wind at their backs the Wests forced play in the opening half. In the first minute Betteridge was through the Saanich backs but hesitated too long in his shot and missed the goal completely. Still pressing "Scotty" Robinson passed up another fine chance by trying to get in too close. A few minutes later he passed to Youson when he had a good opening and the ball was cleared by Joe Crowe. On a cross by Gibbons, Connorton headed the ball into the side of the net. The Thistles finally broke away and Marley made two fine saves of drives from Bobby Burns and Sammy Essler. Right after that the goalie gathered in a header from Burns that was headed for the corner.

THISTLES TAKE LEAD

The Wests rushed the ball down the field and Leggett conceded a corner. Connorton's centre was driven up the field by Viggers. At the other end Saville tried a long shot that missed the corner by inches. The Thistles went into the lead when Mail scored on a low shot following a corner kick by Sammy Essler. The winger sent in a fine cross and Marley pushed the ball clear of the goal. Lorandini tried to help it along with his head but placed it right on Mail's toe and he picked the corner.

A few minutes before half-time Robinson tied the score when he snapped in a shot from the penalty line that hit under the bar and glanced into the net. It was a pretty shot and left Goalie Wilmshurst no chance to block.

With the start of the second half the rain came down in a regular deluge and play slowed up considerably. The Wests made a change in their lineup, Pat Mulcahy replacing Gibbons on the left wing. During a scramble in the Wests' goalmouth Thompson, left full-back, was hit in the face with the ball and had to leave the field, being replaced by Moody. The Thistles continued to hold the upper hand and Mail was clear through with only Marley to beat but his low shot went past the post.

Breaking fast the Wests went a goal up when Robinson took Betteridge's pass in the air to hook the ball past Wilmshurst. It was a cleverly executed goal. Jim Crowe then replaced Duncan at half-back for the Thistles. The Thistles played all out in an effort to get back on even terms. Marley fumbled a shot from Burns but rushed out to kick the ball up the field. Taking a pass from Burns, Mail made the score 2 to 2 when he tapped the ball into the corner, the ball just catching the side of the net. The final whistle found no change in the score.

Robb refereed.

The teams follow:

Victoria West — Marley, Wright, Thompson, Moody, Lorandini, Peers, Cockin, Connorton, Youson, Robinson, Betteridge, Gibbons and Mulcahy.

Saanich Thistles—Wilmshurst, Joe Crowe, Leggett, Williams, Viggers, Art Duncan, Jim Crowe, Essler, Price, Mail, Burns and Saville.

Although strengthened by the addition of Boyd, former Esquimalt centre-half, the City were unable to cope with the smooth play of Esquimalt. The City were the aggressors in the early stages, and after ten minutes of play went into the lead on a goal by Davidson, right winger.

Esquimalt took up the offensive and five minutes later John Watt put them back on even terms with a hard drive that Lorandini had no chance on. Still pressing, the Dockers took the lead with only a few minutes before half-time, Mike Wagland being responsible for the goal.

For the first few minutes of the second half the City had a slight edge and the Esquimalt backs and goalie De Costa were kept busy. Halfway through the period John Watt scored his second goal of the match putting Esquimalt two goals ahead. For the remainder of the match play was even, with neither team being dangerous.

Ralph Alcock refereed.

The teams follow:

Esquimalt—De Costa; Marsh and J. Watt; De Costa, Sweeney and Edwards; Stewart, John Watt, Stewart, Wagland and Bichard.

City—Lorandini; Gloag and Gibbons; McVie, Boyd and Smith; Davidson, McMillan, Chalmers, Glasby and McLean.

Scottish Soccer Referee Knocked Out By Spectator

Demonstration at Rangers-Ayr United Match Sees Arbitrator Hit By Stone

HARD DAY FOR LEADING TEAMS

Position of Leaders in English First Division Unchanged; Good Games Seen

Glasgow, Jan. 2. — Week-end games in the Scottish Football League saw Rangers recapture leadership of the first division by a 3 to 3 tie with Ayr United, while Celtics went down to defeat, 3 to 0, before Hamilton Academicals.

It was a bad day for leading teams as Motherwell also suffered a reverse at the hands of Aberdeen. The score was 3 to 2. The weather was dull and the fields heavy from recent rains. Celtic and Motherwell were beaten on their own grounds.

Hearts gained a smashing 7 to 2 win over Airdrieonians when their forwards went on a scoring rampage. J. White and Walker scored twice each, while Smith, Murray and Miller added one apiece. Connor scored both Airdrieonian goals. The victory put Hearts in a challenging position for third place, just two points behind Motherwell.

A SURPRISE

Ayr United's draw with Rangers was a major upset as they are near the bottom of the list. The game was marred by a demonstration by spectators, in which the referee was struck by a stone thrown by someone in the bleachers. He was knocked out, but recovered after receiving medical attention.

Merrie, Taylor and McCall were goal-getters, while Smith, Archibald and Fleming scored for Rangers.

Hamilton Academicals vanquished Celtics in a clean-cut fashion when Crawley scored twice and King once.

Aberdeen went after Motherwell hard and led by 3 to 0 after Moore had got two and McDermid one. Motherwell put everything they had into the game from then on and Moffat scored. McGill, Aberdeen, scored on his own goal during a scrage in front of the goal mouth, but even with that help Motherwell could not catch up.

Hibernians remained well out in front of the second division, defeating Albion Rovers, 2 to 1.

London, Jan. 2—Teams in the English Football League struggled through week-end games with their ranks riddled by injuries and the flu, but the schedule brought no real upsets.

Arsenal stayed out in front of the first division by beating Birmingham, 3 to 0, but failed to increase its lead as Aston Villa won from Middlesborough, 3 to 1, and Sheffield Wednesday took Blackpool, 4 to 2. The Villans and Sheffield are virtually deadlocked in second place, five points behind Gunners, although the Villans have a slightly better goal average than their rivals.

A battle royal has developed for fourth place now held by Newcastle United with Derby County and Leeds United trailing in that order on the basis of goal averages, while all have the same number of points.

The most thrilling match of the week-end was that between Sheffield Wednesday and Blackpool. Blackpool started with the wind at their backs and forced Sheffield to play very much on the defensive. Hampson scored twice in quick succession to give Blackpool an early lead, but Strange and Rimmer tied the score before the end of the frame.

A CLOSE VICTORY

In the second half Sterling put Sheffield in the lead for the first time, but Wilkinson came right back to equalize again. The crowd had made up its mind the score would be tied at the end of the game, but Burgess got the winner just as the whistle blew.

The Aston Villa-Middlesbrough game was a tame affair featured by inaccurate passing and considerable sloppiness. Houghton scored on a penalty kick to give Villans the edge in the first half, but Morton, the Villa's goalie, was forced to make some marvelous saves to keep his team in front.

Middlesbrough attacked vigorously in the second act but the Villans staged a strong finish. Nine minutes from the end of the game Mandley and Beresford scored in quick succession and Baxter got Middlesbrough's only goal.

Derby County swamped Leeds United 5 to 1. Jessop opened the scoring with a goal for Derby but Keetley tied it up before the interval. Duncan notched a sensational tally that bounced in off the crossbar. Crooks scored from close in and Bowers got one from a corner and another with a header.

GOAL IS CHEERED

A crowd of 45,000 saw Arsenal beat Birmingham in a fine game that brought no scoring until the second half. James got a fine goal off his left foot that produced prolonged cheering. Jack scored from Coleman's pass and Bastin got the last goal just before the final whistle.

Forty thousand persons watched West Bromwich Albion beat Everton, 2 to 1. Everton played Cook, the Irish international right back recently transferred from Celtic. Glidden opened the scoring for Albions and Dean tied the score shortly after. Robins scored the winner when he took advantage of an error by Everton's defence.

Tottenham Hotspurs, who defeated Charlton Athletic 3 to 0, are making a strong bid for the leadership of the second division now held by Bradford City, only a point ahead of them.

Spurs had the edge all through Saturday's game. Hall opened the scoring with a goal from Evans's centre and Evans increased the lead early in the second half. Hunt got the final tally on a fine individual effort. Bradford City had little difficulty in winning from Preston North End, 2 to 0.

Reading retained second place by beating Cardiff City, 1 to 0, despite the fact it fielded a complete team of reserves in place in regulars who are ill or suffering from injuries.

Chester remained at the head of the northern section, winning 5 to 1 from Mansfield Town. Barnsley beat Wrexham, 5 to 3, to reach third place in the standing. Before the start of the holidays this team was eighth.

Miami Springs, Fla., Jan. 2.—Beating the course tournament record by seven strokes, Young Johnny Revolta, Menominee, Mich., yesterday won the seventh annual Miami open golf tournament with a seventy-two-hole score of 278. He received $650 first prize.

Revolta's scores for the four eighteen-hole rounds were 66-68-72-72. The course par is 72. Denny Shute, Cleveland, Ohio, withstood a driving finish by Gene Sarazen and landed in second place with 138-72-72—282.

Sarazen, playing yesterday's thirty-six holes in four and a half hours in order to take a plane for Los Angeles, won third money with cards of 143-73-69—285.

Henry Ciuci, Fresh Meadow, L.I., was fourth with 137-73-76—286.

Andy Kay, Toronto, played a steady game to come home with 298. His scores were: 152-74-72.

Illness Forces Vic Ripley Out

Chicago, Jan. 2—Vic Ripley, the Calgary blonde who learned his puck chasing in Western Canada hockey circles, may be out of the Chicago Black Hawks' line-up for six weeks.

Ripley, brilliant centre player and one of the mainstays of the Hawk front line, has been ill for several days. He was not in the line-up against Toronto Maple Leafs last Tuesday. At that time it was believed he was suffering from an attack of influenza. The latest check-up showed, however, he may have to undergo a surgical operation.

DETROIT AND TORONTO TIE

New York Rangers Still Lead American Division; Beaten Saturday By Maroons

Starting the New Year with a series of thrilling battles, the National Hockey League clubs brought out more sharply than ever the terrific struggle for places in the American division and the close but less interesting race in the Canadian section.

Detroit, which dropped back into the American group cellar yesterday evening after pulling up to tie Chicago, was closer to the division-leading New York Rangers than the Montreal Maroons and Ottawa Senators, which were tied for second in the international section, were to the Toronto Maple Leafs.

Toronto defeated Chicago and the Maroons by one goal margins, then came out of Detroit yesterday evening with a 2 to 2 tie as Johnny Sorrell, Red Wing forward, deflected Larry Aurie's high shot into the net in the last forty seconds of play. The five points earned during the last week of 1932 gave the Maple Leafs a total of twenty-three and a six point margin over the second place clubs.

Ottawa beat the Maroons and lost to the Rangers during he week, while Montreal rallied from three straight shutouts to wallop the Rangers 4 to 2 and gain a tie for second.

RANGERS STILL LEAD

After exchanging places with Boston a couple of times, the Rangers finished the week in the American division lead by one point despite Saturday's defeat. The Bruins met an equally unexpected setback yesterday evening when the New York Americans set them down 5 to 4 in a wide open, exciting clash. It gave each of the leaders an even break for the week as the Bruins had had previously defeated the Montreal Canadiens, 1 to 0.

The Amerks, after slipping into the Canadian division cllare when Detroit and the Canadiens played a 3 to 3 tie Thursday, regained fourth place by triumphing yesterday evening while the Habitants took a 4 to 1 walloping from Chicago.

That game also gave the Black Hawks third place in the American section after Detroit's 3 to 1 victory over the Americans and tie with the Canadiens had brought the Red Wings up even. Paul Thompson led Chicago's assault with three goals and an assist.

New York, Jan. 2.—A fluke goal in the last minute of play enabled New York Americans to turn back Boston Bruins 5 to 4 yesterday evening in one of the most exciting games of the National Hockey League season.

After "blowing" a two-goal lead early in the period, the Amerks came back with a final drive that brought first two Boston penalties, and then the deciding goal. With Boston shy two men, "Duke" Dutkowski, American defence man, let fly a wild shot, the puck hitting another American, Nick Wasnie, on the chest as he stood alongside the net and bounced past the surprised goalie.

Red Jackson with two coal, and Eddie Shore with two assists were the high point getters.

Chicago, Jan. 2.—Outskated, but not outfought, Montreal Canadiens yesterday evening bowed to Chicago Black Hawks 4 to 1 in their National League hockey match.

The battle was fast and by far the roughest seen in Chicago this season. In the final period both teams were playing short more often than not, and it was Montreal's desperate efforts to score that gave Chicago their last two goals.

Paul Thompson earned one in the first period, and after a scoreless second session, Lola Coulture boosted in a long one, in the third.

After Couture scored, Gerald Carson connected for Canadiens. The Frenchmen then sent all hands up the ice in an effort to tie it up, and Thompson skated in for two more.

Detroit, Jan. 2.—Detroit Red Wings lifted a 2 to 2 tie out of the fire in the final seconds of the third period of a wild overtime National League hockey match with Toronto's speedy Maple Leafs here yesterday evening, while 10,000 spectators, largest crowd of the current hockey season, roared at the spectacular game.

Herbie Lewis put away the first Red Wing goal, taking a double assist from Johnny Gallagher and Carl Voss in the first period. Eight minutes after the second period started, Ken Doraty hooked Andy Blair's pass to score. Seven minutes after the third period opened Harvey Jackson took a long pass from Primeau to put the Leafs in the lead.

Johnny Sorrel's tying goal came on an assist by Larry Aurie, who lifted a high shot from the right boards near the Leaf blue line. As the puck soared toward the backboards, Sorrel flicked his stick in the air and sent it past Chabot, to tie up the game.

Montreal, Jan. 2.—It was a joyous New Year's Eve for Montreal Maroons who defeated New York Rangers 4 to 2, here Saturday evening in the only National Hockey League game scheduled. The Maroons broke a bad losing streak of five straight games and regained the stride that carried them to the upper rugs of the Canadian section standing earlier in the season.

Ching Johnson gave the Rangers a slim lead in the first period off Heller's pass. The second period was dull and scoreless, but the Maroons broke loose in the last period and smothered the smart New Yorkers with a flurry of four goals.

Frank Boucher, leading scorer of the Canadian section, added two goals to his season's bag. Paul Haynes notched another and Hooley Smith got the fourth. Cecil Dillon rapped home Rangers' second goal.

Maroons scored two of their goals while Earl Seibert and Ott Heller fumed in the penalty box. Heller and Dave Trottier tangled in a mild fist fight and each drew a major. Then Earl Siebert was waved to the sidelines for tripping.

Lester Patrick sent all his troops rushing into the fray in the last few minutes, leaving the defense to Andy Aitkenhead. The tall goalie had some narrow escapes as marauding Maroon wings broke away from the tangled mass at the Maroon end of the rink. Rangers were still trying when the gong ended the battle.

Officials—Rodden and Goodman.

SUMMARY

First period—1, Rangers, Johnson (Heller), 13.13. Penalties—Johnson, E. Siebert, Smith.

Second period—No score. Penalties—Ward, Boucher, Brennan.

Big League Bowling

By AL DEMAREE

Sometimes on a "hook alley," an alley that tends to accentuate a curve or "hook" ball, you have trouble keeping your ball to the right of the head pin.

When using your normal delivery your ball has an unusual "hook" and continually crosses over to the "Brooklyn" side, often missing the head pin completely.

To overcome this condition start laying your ball on the alley two or three feet farther in front of the foul line than you do with your normal delivery.

This gives the ball less time to take a pronounced curve, as it is in the air two or three feet longer than usual, and obviously cannot begin to take "English" until it hits the alley.

Bays and Navy Rugby Victors

Former Cinch First Half Title With One-sided Win Over Wanderers

Sailors Trounce Canadian Scottish 9 to 3 in Fast, Rugged Encounter

Blanking the Oak Bay Wanderers 19 to 0, James Bay Athletic Association completed the first half of the city senior A Rugby League here undefeated on Saturday in one-sided game at Oak Bay Park. Navy, second standing team in the league, smashed their way through the Scottish to a 9 to 3 victory on the muddy Royal Athletic Park field in a game spoiled by unfavorable ground conditions.

It was largely a story of the Navy's extra experience and hard fighting forwards with here and there smart backfield plays that gave the tars their win.

The Scots played hard in the first half, but could make little impression on the sailors.

FIRST TRY

Five minutes from half time, Donald secured the ball from a line-out and plunged across for the sailors' first tally. The kick failed.

Roy Lund and McGolderick were injured shortly before the interval.

Opening the second half the two teams sent the ball from end to end on kicking exchanges. Colgate was turning in a good performance for the highlanders as fullback.

Nixon dropped Henderson on the Scots fifteen-yard line as the sailors went down on a dangerous run. On a series of kick and run plays the highlanders fought back to the Navy fifteen-yard line for a scrum, but the tars kicked clear.

Adams broke away on a dribble to the Scots ground. The sailors forced over in the scrum, but the highlanders touched down for a safety kick.

Play swung from end to end with the tars showing a slight edge.

LONE SCOT POINTS

The highlanders' lone score came well on in the half when Colgate took a penalty kick thirty-five yards out and sent the ball soaring between the posts to tie up the count of 3 to 3.

The Navy rushed through on several good breaks before McDonald ran to the Scots' line on a pretty solo effort. From a line-out near the clansmen's flag the Navy backs secured. The ball went down the line before McDonald secured and made an opening for Smith, who went over for the Navy's second try. The kick again failed.

The militiamen were playing with only thirteen men most of the second half.

LAST COUNTER

Just before time Adams got away on a good run to the Scots' twenty-five where he lost the ball. Jones picked up and galloped over for the final try which also went unconverted.

Acland refereed and the teams were:

Canadian Scottish—Colgate, Hocking, Kinsman, Boorman, Normington, Mabee, Robson, Henderson, A. Briggs, Slept, Rockingham, Lund, J. Briggs, Grant and Woodly.

Navy—Robinson, Williams, Smith, Wurtele, McDonald, Bamfield, Hudson, Donald, McGoldrick, and McRae.

BAYS VICTORS

Bays had little difficulty in downing the tail-end Wanderers, who were playing with fourteen men until Symons sustained an injury to his collarbone and was forced from the field.

Latta opened the scoring for the rowing club after the J.B.A.A. forwards had gained ground on several good plays. His try was not converted. Brown added another shortly after, going over from a five-yard scrum. Again the kick failed.

For the remainder of the half the lighter Wanderers held the league-leaders scoreless. The Oak Bay forwards made one or two dangerous sorties and Ryall and Ellis turned in good defensive games before the interval.

SCORING PARADE

The Wanderers held the oarsmen for the first ten minutes of the second half before the parade started with Dunn going over on a nice three-quarter movement. Usher changed from fullback to wing three-quarter and scored. Joe Allison went over for the last try after a forty yard run. The last two tries were converted.

Gray refereed and the teams were: Wanderers—Symons, Meade-Robins, Ellis, Acland, Haines, Ryall, "Battling" Andrewes, Campbell, Bill King, Mahew, Wray, Harper, McGregor, N. Symons.

J.B.A.A. — Usher, Addison, Latta, Dunn, Johnston, Brown, Murray, Pettigrew, Sprinkling, Lemm, Peard, de Blaquiere, Goad, Nixon, Anderstrom.

Out-of-bounds Play By N.D. Deceptive

By JOE GLASS

Another George Keogan play successfully used by Notre Dame. This time an out-of-bounds play, good from either side-line.

The basic idea of this design is that it makes the defensive men shift, in order to handle the offensive men. They have to shift mighty fast, too, and if they fail to do this, the fat is likely to be in the fire.

Left guard (2) takes the pass position out-of-bounds. Two men only, left guard (1) and right forward (4) push in for the pass. Centre (5) and left forward (3) hold respectively to to the right and left corners.

No. 1 goes in first and hardest toward the ball. No. 2 fakes to pass to him, but, instead, gives the ball to 4. No. 2 then runs into the court and simultaneously 5 breaks in toward the free throw line. No. 2 takes a short return pass from 4 and throws to 5. Here 3 enters into the play. As 2 receives the return pass from 4, 3 feints toward him as though to receive a pass. Instead he reverses and cuts toward the basket. No. 5 passes to him and he shoots.

Forces Work Toward General Business Upturn, Says Beatty

MENTAL ATTITUDE

"It seems to me the most important of the several forward moves that have been recorded during the past year is the change that has taken place in the minds of the people of this country. A year ago most of us were in a state of bewildered wonderment as to what had happened, and one thing we were sure of was that it could not last much longer. Since that event after event of an economic nature has forced home on our people a far sounder realization of the gravity of the situation and the imperative need of mental, physical and economic adjustment to the changed conditions. That was the first step toward rehabilitation that had to be achieved, and nothing much could be done until the move in that direction was decisive and effectual. Something along this line had been accomplished by the beginning of 1932, but in the light of what has happened since we can now see how far it fell short of what had to be done. During the past year progress has been most important. Indeed, it has gone so far that I conceive it possible that in many directions the point of upturn has either been reached or, is near at hand. Business institutions and individuals have been forced to reorganize their affairs until they have brought them to a position where anything in the nature of a recovery in business volume would be handled with directness, economy and efficiency such as would not have been possible in the flamboyant days that preceded this so-called depression.

GOVERNMENT READJUSTMENT

"A year ago I suggested the movement toward economic readjustment would go farther, perhaps even into public and governmental institutions, and when I say that I consider this latter phase of the general situation to be at least as important as any other now facing the people of Canada, I speak from a conviction that failure to boldly meet and satisfactorily deal with this matter may easily mean national insolvency and will certainly retard any possible return to a reasonably full measure of prosperity.

"Nothing the troubles of the past year have brought into public recognition is so outstanding as is the need for curtailing public expenditure and co-ordinating and reorganizing public activities so they may be placed on a basis such as this country of ten million people can well afford. Courageous effort has accomplished real progress along this line, but much remains to be done before our national affairs are on a sound economic basis. Taxation must ever be a discourager of trade and the possibility of increased taxation to carry on the nation's business, and most of all to meet interest charges on debts, is a distrubing thought at this time. Over the past year, far from having decreased our public indebtedness, we have added to it.

"The call for assistance to the unemployed and their families, under present circumstances, rightly demands first attention. But no less inevitable are the demands for payment of interest charges on increased national indebtedness that, as a result of industrial and commercial depression and past disregard of ordinary business principles, could not have been averted. The nation's annual interest bill is mounting steadily and has done so for many years, a satement that is equally true of Dominion, provincial and municipal affairs. It is the corporate and individual taxpayer who has to pay these and since the Canadian Pacific Railway Company pays yearly the country's largest tax bill, I may be allowed to lay particular stress on this point, which I consider calls for earnest study at the present time. It might be mentioned here that the company's tax bill for the year was almost $6,000,000, bringing its total contribution to Canada's tax collections since incorporation to about $116,000,000. Government bodies have not failed to recognize the urgent need for curtailment of expenditure and have made courageous if belated moves toward stemming the tide. This may be accounted as constructive progression in the right direction and if our people have been brought to give serious consideration to this phase of the national economic situation, it is further evidence that we have set our foot on the road leading to economic re-establishment.

RAILWAY PROBLEMS

"The railway situation retains place as Canada's most imperative domestic problem. A year ago we ventured to hope its early solution was foreshadowed by the appointment of a competent tribunal to probe into its causes and complexities and to present an efficacious solution. In formulating that hope we did not foresee the proposed solution would be based on what the commission thought the people of Canada would be willing to accept rather than on the stern necessities of the case. Nor was it then apparent that conditions had all was to about the immediate need for [illegible] relief for a situation that [illegible] brought effective [illegible] national bankruptcy would [illegible] threatened [illegible] more [illegible] come [illegible] aggravated as business offering for the railroads continued to show drastic and unprecendented declines. That is what has happened. The decrease in freight car loadings which began in 1930 has continued almost uninterruptedly. In 1931, up to the end of the first week of December, 559,359 less freight cars had been loaded on all Canadian railways than for the same period of the previous year. During the same period in the last year 376,016 less cars were loaded than in 1931. The decline in passenger business has been relatively the same. The resultant effect on railway earnings has been naturally disastrous. For the first ten months of 1931 Canadian Pacific gross revenue declined 22.1 per cent as compared with that of 1930. For the first ten months of the last year there was a further decline of 15.4 per cent. The decline continues, and there certainly appears to be no evidence in sight that for many years we shall see them entirely eliminated and our earnings back where they were in 1928. It is true the railways have effected drastic economies. As compared with 1931, Canadian Pacific operating costs for the first ten months of 1932 were 15.3 per cent lower, and we expect we shall make a still better showing in this regard throughout the coming year. Here again the past twelve months have been a period of substantial progress.

GREAT ECONOMIES FORESEEN

"Having the best hope in the world, I hesitate to prophesy any great increase in gross earnings, and it is my deeply considered conviction that if the railways over the next ten or fifteen years are to live anywhere within their income, economies will have to go very much farther indeed than has yet been considered by a great number of our people who, it is only fair to state, have not had even a fair opportunity of informing themselves on the situation," continued Mr. Beatty. "For years we have been impelled toward large capital expenditures, and at the same time competitive transportation agencies have been built up and maintained out of public funds. The Deputy Minister of Public Works for Ontario recently stated the total cost of highways in Canada was $617,323,000. While his preliminary report of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics puts the total expenditure for road construction for 1931 at $66,250,000. Both of these amounts reflect more than anything else the advent of motorized road traffic. According to the Department of Railways and Canals, Canada's total investment in canals at March 31, 1931, was $236,216,461. For approximately eight months of the year they compete with the railways and they are toll-free, their users contributing nothing to either operating costs or interest charges. Keeping these facts in view and having in mind the probable course of economic events over the next few years, the urgency of the need for fundamental changes in our railway policy should be clearly apparent.

WORLD FACTORS

"With some feeling of relief I turn from our own railway problem to the more general economic situation. It is fundamentally a world condition with which we are faced. Dark and uncertain as the outlook may appear to the casual observer, I still think that in this wider field the year has not been without important developments leading toward trade stabilization and encouragement," Mr. Beatty continued. "In the matter of international war debts there have been measurable advances, particularly over the past month. World-wide discussion of the subject and the action of the debtor nations have tended to clear the air and to bring the whole matter nearer a focal point where, I believe, common sense views and a reasonable spirit looking towards a just compromise may be expected to assert themselves. Among those whose interest lie in the direction of a resumption of international trade activity the conviction grows that the first step to be taken is the settlement of this much vexed question. Since there is no phase of industrial or commercial activity unaffected by international trade relations the urge toward settlement steadily becomes more widespread.

ECONOMIC CONFERENCE

"Another factor which I believe will prove to be a constructive influence of far-reaching importance is the coming World Trade Conference. Pious hopes might foresee a very general scaling down of tariff barriers that would go far towards encouraging the movement of commodities. If the conference only starts a movement in that direction it will have been well worth while.

"An outstanding event of our year was the Imperial Trade Conference at Ottawa in July. It has already proved to have been helpful and its agreements are reflected in increased inter-Dominion movements of various products. Its full effect on Canadian trade has yet to be experienced. There exists also the very real probability that it will influence among other nations a willingness to meet on a common ground of trade encouragement.

CANADA'S FUTURE

"I do not think that in this review I have erred on the side of pessimism, even when discussing the railway situation," wrote Mr. Beatty. "On the subject of Canada's ultimate future I am as great an optimist as ever I was, and I have a lively hope that even now the turn has come and that forces which are not fully evident are working towards a general business improvement.

"There are factors like our largely increased production of gold, the establishment in Canada of many branch factories from other countries and the opening of empire markets for new goods, all of which will have important results when the flow of trade begins to assume a normal aspect.

"Another most encouraging factor is reflected in an announcement from Ottawa that for the twelve months ended November 30 the country had a balance of exports over imports of over $17,000,000. It is true our total foreign trade has suffered a severe decline, but the fact that the balance is on the export side is evidence that, as far as that trade is concerned, we are beginning to again live within our means.

"Having in view world conditions and the far reaching complexity of our own problems, I cannot believe the return to what will prove a normal state of affairs will be a swift process. But long before it is clearly discernable the slack of unemployment will begin to be taken up and the worst of our troubles will have receded into the background. General prosperity will develop and become permanent only so fast as we are able to adjust ourselves to the new conditions prevailing. I cannot think it well that the recovery should come with a rush since the temptation to forget the lessons we have learned would be too strong. For one thing, I do not hesitate to say that if within three years we found ourselves again in such a period of economic inflation as we experienced about 1928, and if we had not then definitely settled the railway problem on sound and permanent economic lines, we would again be swept off our feet by a flood of competition and competitive extravagances. This, I think applies with equal force to all forms of business.

NEW RAILWAY BASIS

"Referring a year ago to the royal commission on railways, I urged the people of Canada should meet its suggested solutions for our problems with earnest consideration of their economic values unbiased by political color or preconceived prejudices," continued Mr. Beatty. "The question is now more than ever a matter of urgent public discussion and will continue so for many months. I think it well to stress the fact that it cannot satisfactorily be dealt with in a way to save the country from disaster unless it be considered as an economic question and settled in accordance with the economic truth that transportation agencies are no different from any other form of industrial institution in that they must be both allowed and required to pay their way. Any other attempted solution of the difficulty would be ineffectual and it is the inescapable obligation of the people of Canada to apply this test to whatever proposals for settlement of the problem may come forward.

ALL the spring you wandered,
Chasing stars that tumbled,
Riding tail ends of the winds,
Dream and flower jumbled.

NOW that summer's over,
Now that snowlight's making
Shadows on the windows,
Now that cakes are baking,

TEA is made, fires lighted,
Will you come to find me?
Winter hearts are homing hearts,
Other things remind me.

I SHOULD close the storm doors,
With the day's slow ending,
Never let you enter—
I have books and mending!

BUT when dusk is falling
And the kettle's humming
I put on a gayer frock—
Aren't you ever coming?

Are Your Children Prepared For Life?

Dorothy Dix

Finds Most Children Coddled

Why Do We Parents, Who Love Our Children, Try to Bring Them Up in Ignorance of Life's Realities Instead of Giving Them the Strength to Endure and the Courage to Fight?

WE WHO LOVE our children, do everything for them except prepare them for life. And that is the most important thing of all. We bring them up on fairy tales instead of telling them the cold, hard truth. We try to hold them by the hand instead of teaching them to stand alone. We make them soft with indulgences. We teach them to use their muscles, but not their judgments. We teach them foreign languages and higher mathematics and occult philosophies, and leave them as ignorant as babes of the world in which they are to live. We work ourselves to death trying to make enough money to indulge the extravagant tastes we have cultivated in them, but we do not teach them how to earn a dollar of their own.

In a word, we spend twenty years or more carefully guarding a child against going near the water and then we chuck him into the sea and are terribly disappointed when he sinks instead of coming home with his chest covered with champion swimming medals. And the more we love our children, the more grief we bring upon them.

Why parents suffer from the delusion that existence is going to be somehow soft-padded for their offspring, and that their children are never going to need to have the strength bred in them to endure, nor be given the courage to fight, nor taught how to negotiate the skiddy turns, nobody knows. It is just one of the things that are. And there are not many of us who have not realized, time and again, how cruel has been the kindness of our fathers and mothers who have tried to protect us from life instead of teaching us how to meet it.

I am thinking now of a little bride with whom I have lately been thrown in contact—a fine, sweet girl who has married a splendid young man, but he has brought her 2,000 miles away from her mother and she is simply dying of homesickness and mothersickness.

"I can't stand it," she sobbed to me. "I can't endure it. It's killing me to be separated from mother. Why, until the day I was married I had never spent a night away from mother. Even when I went on a visit she always went with me. I don't know how to think or do anything for myself. I don't know what I want to eat or to wear. Mother always decided everything for me. Oh, I know John is good and kind, and he has given me a beautiful home and a lovely car, but I can't live without mother, and I am the most miserable girl in the world."

Of course, I tried to make the girl see that it must be pretty humiliating to a bridegroom to have his honeymoon salted down in tears by his wife doing the cry-baby act for her mother, and I represented to her as strongly as I could what an unfair deal she would be giving her husband if she forced him to relinquish the career in which he had already achieved success and where fortune surely awaited him and start all over again among strangers just because she could not endure to be separated from her mother, but all that she answered was just a wail that she wanted m-o-t-h-e-r.

And I thought how selfish are the mothers who, to satisfy their own vanity, their own affection, their own desire to be supreme, bind their children to them with bonds that cannot be broken without breaking their children's hearts. The mothers who, knowing their daughters must some time marry and leave them, make of this separation a tragedy instead of its being as natural and simple a thing as young birds leaving the nest and going out happily to build nests of their own.

Every woman expects her daughters to marry. She wants them to marry and to be happy, yet how few mothers do the first thing toward preparing their daughters for marriage? Most of them do not even teach their girls the first rudiments of housekeeping, yet upon the wife being a good manager and a good cook and making a comfortable home rests the stability of every domestic partnership.

Still less do mothers prepare their daughters for the inevitable disillusionments of marriage when the bridal finery is folded away, and the billing and cooing ceases and the romance fades and marriage settles down into the long, steady grind of the business of life instead of being a gay adventure. Mother has not taught her daughters how to meet this crisis; how to make the necessary adjustments; how to dig in and be patient with a husband who is a mere man instead of a little tin god; how to use diplomacy and finesse in dealing with the men they are married to and handle them with gloves.

Cruel, cruel, when you think of it, that mothers do not prepare their daughters for marriage by passing along to them some of the dearly bought wisdom they have acquired about matrimony. But they do not. All the preparation for marriage that the average mother bestows upon her daughters is a lipstick and all the pretty clothes she can buy them.

Nor do fathers take any more trouble in preparing their sons for life than mothers do their daughters. Every man knows all the temptations that await every boy, but how few fathers ever sit down with their boys and thrash out with them beforehand the bitter harvest they are bound to reap if they sow a wild-oat crop? How few fathers teach their boys to use their own judgments in making their own decisions. How few fathers teach their boys a code to live by and die by.

How few fathers teach their boys to do the hard thing without whining; to be patient; to be efficient; to do some one thing well enough to make a living by it. Yet these are the things he is going to need every day of his life.

Every man wants his sons to be successes, yet he does not teach them how to be successful.

Lodestones and Other Magnets

If we could believe an old legend, there was once a shepherd on the island of Crete who had a very strange thing happen to him. He was strolling along when he felt his feet grow heavy. He was able to walk, but he had to use great effort to do so.

Diagram showing how "positive" and "negative" poles treat iron filings.

What caused his heavy steps? The shepherd obtained tools and dug into the ground. Soon he came to a bed of lodestone ore. It had the power to attract iron to itself. The tacks in the man's sandals and the iron tip of his shepherd's staff had made it hard for him to walk.

We do not need to believe that story about the discovery of the lodestone; but men really have found iron ore with magic power. Such pieces of iron are known as "lodestones" and will draw nails or other iron things to themselves.

An olden Greek wrote words meaning:

"There is a stone which will pull iron rings to itself. It will give the same power to the rings. Sometimes you will see a number of pieces of iron and rings hanging one from another, so as to form a chain."

According to another story, the first lodestones were found in Asia Minor at a place known as Magnesia. The name "magnet" appears to have come from Magnesia.

If a lodestone is rubbed against a piece of common iron, the iron will become a magnet. Very likely there is a magnet in your home. If not, I suggest that you buy one as soon as you find it easy to do so. A small horseshoe magnet may be obtained for a nickel or a dime, and it makes a good plaything.

Strong "bar magnets" cost more, but they will display more of the "magic power."

Each magnet has two "poles." These poles are known as "positive and negative," or as "North and South."

With a pair of bar magnets and some iron filings, you may make some interesting tests. Place the magnets on a sheet of paper, with the ends an inch or two apart, and drop a handful of iron filings between them. Then tap the paper and see what happens to the filings!

You should learn through your tests, that poles of the same kind do not attract each other. Opposite poles, on the other hand, show strong attraction.

8,299 Ships Called Here During Year

Twelve Million Tons of Shipping Entered and Cleared; Lumber Shipments Down

Cargo Movements Here Well Maintained; Only One New Ship Arrives

Ships to the number of 8,299 entered and cleared at the port of Victoria during the year that ended Saturday, according to a report issued by the Victoria branch of the Department of Customs. These figures are a little down from last year, because of the absence of tramp freighters and the withdrawal from service of several coast ships.

The ships had total registration of 12,838,443 tons. They included ships of the B.C. Coast Service that ply between here and Seattle the ferry ships operating out of Victoria, and all deep-sea ships touching at this port, including the Empress and President liners that connect Victoria with the Orient and the Aorangi and Niagara, which are in the Australian service.

In detailed form the customs report shows that 2,490 coastwise ships, registered at 2,802,737 tons, docked inbound during the year and that 1,829 coastwise ships, of a total of 2,491,969 tons, docked outbound.

Foreign shipping, which included most of the deep-sea vessels, amounted to 1,935 vessels inbound. These ships had a total registration of 3,794,908 tons. Outbound were 2,045 ships, with a total registration of 3,788,849 tons.

The port had a fairly good year as far as cargo was concerned. Lumber ships were down from other years, but discharging and loading of cargoes were well maintained.

Only one new ship arrived during the year. This was the Santa Rosa of the Grace Line, which was here two weeks ago from New York on her maiden voyage.

During the summer several cargoes of local canned loganberries were shipped to England aboard different ships in Panama Canal service. Local cargo also included consignments of locally prepared salmon steaks.

SAILORS MEET MANY MISHAPS

Washington, Jan. 2.—Among interesting statistics in the annual report of Surgeon-General C. E. Riggs to Secretary of the Navy Adams appears the following, under the head of "health and accidents":

Fifty-seven sailors fell out of their hammocks.

Hammocks fell on five sailors.

Ten sailors fell out of their bunks.

Twenty-one fell overboard.

Fifteen slipped on ice.

Fourteen slipped on wet floors.

One hundred and ninety-five had accidents from all other forms of slipping.

One was struck by lightning.

One hundred and nine received injuries as a result of "skylarking."

Ten stumbled over railroad and street car tracks.

Thirty-three stepped on nails.

One fell off a street car.

One fell off a train.

One was stung by a bee.

NEW SEAPLANE SPEEDY CRAFT

Travels on Sea and in the Air; Has Air Speed of 375 Miles An Hour

Rome, Jan. 2.—A speedboat that suddenly takes wing and becomes a super-speed seaplane hurtling through the atmosphere at 375 miles an hour has received preliminary tests on Lake Garda, according to an article in Popular Aviation.

Dr. Giovanni Pegna, Italian aeronautical expert, is the designer of the strange craft. A marine propeller drives the streamlined cigar-shaped craft through the water. Wings lie flat on the water. In place of the usual seaplane pontoons, which offers so much air resistance, are two fins extended on struts.

At a speed of eighty-five miles an hour the nose of the machine is lifted off the surface by the two outrigger water fins. The pilot slips a clutch and the airplane propeller on the nose suddenly receives the thrust of the 2,000 horsepower Isotta-Fraschina engine. The water screw has been disconnected and the water craft becomes a seaplane roaring along the surface on the two water fins at the nose and a small pair of auxiliary fins at the tail. Once in the air the craft is a normal aircraft.

The pilot, however, must slip his clutch into neutral to land. An ingenious device arrests the air propeller at a horizontal position so that the machine will not nose over when it strikes the water. The water screw is then thrown in gear and the machine becomes a speedboat again.

Around the Docks

From Los Angeles and San Francisco, the Pacific Steamship Company's liner Dorothy Alexander is due at Rithet piers this evening at 9 o'clock, according to a wireless message received here this morning from Capt. Frank Landstrom, master of the ship. The Dorothy sailed from San Francisco Saturday afternoon. For this port the liner has passengers and general cargo. She will proceed to Seattle at midnight.

NEW SCHEDULE

Starting to-morrow the ferry steamer Iroquois will start a new schedule between here, Seattle, Port Angeles and Port Townsend. She will arrive here each morning from Puget Sound at 8.30 o'clock instead of 9 o'clock, and will sail on her return to Seattle at 9 o'clock instead of 10.15 o'clock. This early departure from Victoria will bring her into Seattle each afternoon at 4 o'clock. She will continue to leave Seattle each night for Victoria at midnight.

OUT WEDNESDAY

Outbound to Honolulu, Suva, Auckland and Sydney, the Canadian-Australasian motorship Aorangi will sail from this port Wednesday evening with a fair list of passengers and a capacity general cargo. She will sail from Vancouver at noon and will spend two hours here in the early evening before putting to sea.

The Ss. Niagara will sail from Sydney on Thursday and is scheduled to arrive here January 26 or 27.

COMING FOR LUMBER

Two ships are due this week to load Vancouver Island lumber at this port. They are the Beljeanne and the Boren, the former for the United Kingdom and the latter for Australia. Both are due towards the end of the week and will berth at the Ogden Point piers.

OUT SATURDAY

Among the liners touching at Victoria this week on their outbound voyages will be the President Taft of the American Mail Line, which will sail for the Orient early Saturday evening. This voyage the Taft will take out a large party of Shriners from Tacoma on an Oriental cruise. The Taft will go to Tacoma Friday evening to pick up the party.

HOLIDAYING ASHORE

Alfred W. Greaves, a member of the engineer's department of the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Russia, remained ashore Saturday when his ship sailed from this port for the Orient. Mr. Greaves will spend his shore vacation at his home in Victoria and will join his ship when she sails for the Orient on her next voyage in March.

FROM ENGLAND

Inbound from ports in the United Kingdom, by way of the Panama Canal and California, the Furness motorliner Pacific Trader is expected at Race Rocks this afternoon at 5.30 o'clock on her way to the William Head quarantine station. She has passengers and cargo for southwest ports.

DUE IN MORNING

Inbound from Manila, Hongkong, Shanghai, Kobe, Yokohama and Honolulu, the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Japan will reach Victoria to-morrow morning at 11 o'clock. She is bringing passengers, mails and general cargo for Victoria and Vancouver. After completing local business the liner will proceed to Vancouver. When next the Empress of Japan reaches Hongkong she will go into drydock there for her annual winter overhaul. She will be in the dock for three weeks.

HERE'S WHAT'S NEW IN AVIATION CIRCLES

A new United States army attack plane, and an odd craft from Italy, are aviation's latest offerings. The army plane, shown above, is a Curtiss "Shrike," a low-wing, all-metal craft being tested at Fort Crockett, Tex. It is equipped with five machine guns and carries a large bomb. It has a speed of about 200 miles an hour. Below is an Italian designer's idea of what a plane should be. It has the motor located inside a tunnel-like fuselage, with pilot seated atop the entire plane. The propeller is, in this wa, prevented from forcing air on the wing surfaces and pushes it back to the tail controls, getting greater response from them.

MARITIME FISH LANDINGS DOWN

Halifax, Jan. 2—A considerable decrease in the quantity and value of fish landed in the Maritime Provinces and the Magdalen Islands during November is noted in statistics of the Eastern Fisheries Division. Landings totaled 15,061,300 pounds, valued at $237,676, compared with 17,835,800 pounds, valued at $360,705 during November 1931.

In order of value the chief varieties landed were haddock, cod, lobsters, smelts, oysters, sardines and scallops.

Prince Edward Island was the only province to record an increase in catch, and this was due to landings of cod. All other varieties decreased both in catch and value, and the value of the total was down despite the increase in quantity. In New Brunswick the catches of smelts, oysters and lobsters were much lower but the sardine catch was greatly increased. Nova Scotia's decrease was due to reduced landings of cod, haddock and mackerel, which were more than 2,000,000 pounds less than in November 1931.

The catch and landed value by provinces:

Nova Scotia—9,695,900 pounds valued at $131,807, compared with 12,343,300 pounds valued at $214,139 in November 1931.

New Brunswick—3,844,000 pounds valued at $86,076, compared with 4,290,900 pounds valued at $110,412 in November 1931.

Prince Edward Island — 1,521,400 pounds valued at $19,793, compared with 1,201,600 pounds valued at $36,154 in November 1931.

FISHERIES BOAT IS TOTAL LOSS

Vancouver, Jan. 2.—The B.C. fisheries cruiser Gull, which was wrecked in a gale a fortnight ago, has been abandoned as a total loss. Officials went to Campbell River a few days ago and inspected the remains of the ship.

There is still much wreckage lying around Campbell River following the storm. E. P. Painter, boat builder, lost his office and the building which housed his fishing tackle and other material, altogether worth $3,000.

All wires in the district were down for some time. Cape Race radio was used to summon Dr. Spohn from Vancouver to attend an emergency operation for a child in Courtenay hospital. He arrived and the child is now making a recovery.

Vancouver Boat Ruined By Fire

Vancouver, Jan. 2.—The Vancouver seiner Lions Gate was destroyed by fire on Sechelt Inlet Friday morning, according to reports received yesterday by San Francisco Board of Marine Underwriters. The vessel, valued at $10,000 and reported a total loss, is owned by S. Hisaoka and H. Kino of Vancouver. No one was injured in the fire.

Capt. P. Clark, surveyor for the underwriters, left yesterday by plane for Sechelt Inlet to inspect the wreck, which is exposed on the beach at half tide. The seiner was a forty-eight-foot craft built in Vancouver in 1926.

The figures for height serve to distinguish high water from low water. Where blanks occur in the tables, the tide rises or falls continuously during three of the usual tidal periods.

The height is in feet and tenths of a foot, measured from the average level of low water.

Trains To Go Under Channel

Passengers May Be Able to Travel From England to Turkey If Plans Materialize

London, Jan. 2—It will be possible to travel from London to Constantinople in the same railway car without change—if the scheme of the Southern Railway Company goes through, and indeed it is predicted that this may be so in about a year and a half. It is stated experts in England and France have begun work on the task of turning the Southern Railway scheme for a new train ferry across the English Channel into a practical reality, the London - Constantinople train service being contingent upon this new channel-train ferry.

Parliamentary powers have been obtained for the carrying out of the necessary structural alterations at Dover, and work will be begun early in the New Year. Steps are being taken by the French Nord Railway to prepare Dunkirk for a regular service of ferry boats.

Technical difficulties to be overcome are considerable. Fortunately the difference in the gauge of British and French railways—the British gauge is four feet eight and a half inches and the French one-eighth of an inch wider—is considered negligible. With the exception of Spain, British coaches, it is understood, could run over all European tracks, including Turkish. The Spanish gauge is five feet six inches.

The main problem facing the engineers is that of tide variation, which at Dover rises and falls more than twenty-five feet. It is understood that the establishment of a kind of lock will be decided on so that the ferry boat can be kept at the railway level at all times.

Cumberland Mayor As Yet Unopposed

Cumberland, Jan. 2.—After seven years in office, Mayor A. Maxwell is again expected to run for the mayoralty of Cumberland.

As no one else has entered the field, the indications are that Mayor Maxwell will be returned by acclamation.

There will be little or no change in the council. There is one vacancy on the board of school trustees to be filled.

Expedition Sails On Alaska Voyage

Seattle, Jan. 2.—Investigation of the early life history of North Pacific halibut is the object of an expedition of scientists who yesterday were on their way from Seattle to the Gulf of Alaska aboard the schooner Eagle.

The halibut larvae are found at a depth of from 150 to 175 fathoms, and one of the objects of the expedition will be to determine what kind of sea water is at that level and whether the halibut eggs continue to float at that depth or come to the top of the sea.

The currents move faster at the top than at the bottom of the ocean, and if the larvae come to the surface of the water, they would drift a long distance.

The investigation will cover the early life history of halibut from the time the eggs are laid until the young fish settle on the bottom and are carried away by the current.

The party of scientists is composed of J. L. Kask of Vancouver, B.C., and Lawrence Townsend, Olaf Ericksen and F. J. Gunderson of Seattle.

Halibut will be tagged and released in various parts of the Gulf of Alaska to determine the migration of the fish. A reward of $1 will be paid by the International Fisheries Commission for each halibut and return of the tag with information as to where the fish was caught and the date.

Ocean currents, the salinity of the sea water, and its temperature at various depths, will be investigated. Net hauls of larvae will determine the extent and location of spawning grounds.

OFFER REWARD

Hundreds of little red bottles, each containing a card requesting the finder to mail it to the International Fisheries Commission in Seattle after supplying information telling where the bottle was found and the date, will be cast overboard by the scientists. A reward of twenty-five cents will be paid for the return of each of the cards.

The bottles are of special design and will drift with ocean currents, dragging a small metal anchor at the end of a six-foot wire. The anchors will cause the bottles to drift with the currents beneath the surface of the water and not be carried with the wind. The data on the cards will enable the commission to determine the drift of young halibut and halibut eggs. Approximately one thousand bottles will be cast overboard from the Eagle during the cruise.

The vessel has been chartered by the International Fisheries Commission from Capt. Jacob H. Engdal, who will be her master during the voyage of exploration and investigation. Captain Engdal's crew consists of Albert Johnsen, Nels Rockness, B. Petersen, B. Knutsen and Olaf Ider. The expedition will spend three months in Alaskan waters.
